Police Officers Split Into Teams U.S. Colonel Said Abducted

By GORDON WINTERS Star Staff Writer

The most drastic reorganization of the Lincoln Police Department in recent years was announced Tuesday by Acting Chief Dale Adams.

Basically, the department's officers are being organized into teams of six or seven headed by a sergeant who works with them in the field, Adams said.

The plan means doubling the number of sergeants in the field from 10 to 20, he said.

Cost Of $1,000 Eight of the sergeants were taken from jobs in the station. Two men were promoted, giving the reorganization a cost of about $1,000, Adams said.

The sergeants being moved were assigned to jobs in communications, the jail, serving warrants and investigating hit and run accidents.

They will be replaced by men with the rank of officer.

The move creates cleaner lines of communication, provides closer supervision and makes for better accountability of the actions of officers. Adams said.

'Like Old Hens' The sergeants "will be like old hens with six or seven chicks,"

Previously, he said, the field sergeants had 15 to 25 people under them. Because of days off, officers might have contact with their sergeant only three days of the work week, he said.

"We realize the impossibility of doing a good job of supervision . . . " under those circumstances. Adams said.

In the new structure, the sergeant and his men will work the same five days in the same location in the city, Adams said. Plainclothes Revisions

In addition to the shuffling in the uniformed ranks, there are changes being made in the plainclothes criminal division, Adams said.

Being abandoned is the concept of the C. O. (commanding officer) who kept track of all investigations, answered the phone, talked to people who walked into the station and gave orders to detectives on his shift.

Now the captains will be assigned to oversee investigation into certain kinds of crimes. Adams said.

Crews Rehearse Launch Of Apollo

Cape Canaveral, Fla. (UPI) -Launch crews pushed the Apollo spacecraft and Saturn rocket to within three seconds of blastoff Wednesday, overcoming lastminute problems in a rehearsal for the Russian-American rendezvous mission.

"We're very happy with this test," said launch director Walter Kapryan after the 2:46 CDT practice takeoff. He said he expected a review of the dry run Thursday to lead to a go-ahead for the mission.

The countdown demonstration test was not disturbed by the sudden request of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., for a delay in the joint mission. The test simulated every phase of the countdown which will lead to a July 15 blastoff of the three-man Apollo Crew 7½ hours after two Soviet cosmonauts are launched.

Proxmire said he had information that the Soviets do not have the technical capability to simultaneously direct both the Soyuz rendezvous mission and the Salyut space station flight already in orbit.

Reserve Funds Down in Britain

But Dr. Glynn S. Lunney, America's technical director for the mission, said, "NASA has concluded that the Sovuz 18-Salyut mission does not constitute a hazard" for the Apollo-Soyuz test project.

Before the simulated takeoff Wednesday, technicians overcame a pretended computer problem in Houston in the final minutes of the countdown. Then ground crews took advantage of changes in countdown procedures in order to beat bad weather moving into the launch site by blasting off earlier than the 2:50 p.m. takeoff scheduledfor the real thing July 15.

The Russians announced last week that the two-man crew of the Salyut orbital laboratory launched May 24 will remain in space through the U.S.-Soviet mission. The U.S. space agency said it had been assured by the Russians that the rendezvous mission had priority and would not be interfered with by the Salyut mission.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford, the American commander for the mission, and fellow astronauts Donald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance Brand were flying to the launch site from Johnson Space Center in

Oregon Trail Riders Cross Into Nebraska

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Lincoln Star is among the sponsors of the Oregon Trail Riders, seven Nebraskans who are retracing on horseback the 2,000-mile Oregon Trail that opened the west. Allen Maybee, group leader, is doing the drawings and Cher Hummel, another member, is writing the reports.)

By CHER HUMMEL We have folded up the Missouri and Kansas maps and crossed into our third state.

Our roads are leading us west through Nebraska. We have covered 210 miles. We have traveled this week on interstate and twolane highways and gravel roads. We've ridden through dirt ruts and across country.

Our day begins at 5 a.m., before the sun is up. First we get our horses ready for the day. That involves watering, feeding, brushing, spraying for flies, picking their hooves and saddling up. It takes a lot of organization that early in the morning getting tents down, cooking our breakfast of bacon and eggs. gathering equipment and planning our route before we head out.

Traveling the trail at 6:30 or 7 a.m. — the early hours - is the most enjoyable. There is little traffic, the air is cool and laden with fresh smells. Depending on the weather, we spend five or six hours in the saddle before noon break. Stops are made at farm yards to water the horses. Our leather hats have served us well as buckets.

In the heat of the day we rest the horses. If we are lucky we can find a small pasture. By 4 p.m. it is time to remount and complete the day. We sometimes travel until sundown, spending up to 10 hours in the saddle.

Night camp is usually set up in a farmhouse vard, where water and pasture are available for the horses. Everyone is tired from the heat of the day, so we usually cool off in a water fight or two as we wash down the horses.

The horses are also glad to see that time of day, to get their saddles off and have a big pan of feed. Camp is set up again. After supper and conversation, we are in bed by dark.

The biggest nuisance in camp has been the armies of mosquitoes. Joe Meek swore the immigrants lied about the mosquitoes because none were as big as turkeys. "Why," he said. "the biggest was no larger than a crow."

Every evening we have visited with news media people. Everyone has been kind and shown much enthusiasm and interest. As we ride along the road, everyone waves, asks questions and offers hospitality.

Using Paul Henderson's maps, we continue following the original ruts of the Oregon Trail.

The land changes are gradual, but very evident. The greenery is sparser now, the hills more rolling. At this point the pioneers were beginning to embark upon "The Great American Desert," so we're savoring the last of the plentiful grasslands.

Near Bellevue we visited the cemetery where Louis Vieux, business agent, interpreter and chief of the Pottawatomie Indians, is buried. He built a bridge across the Red Vermillion River in 1847. This was the third major crossing for the pioneers. We too crossed here on the iron bridge at the exact spot of Vieux's original bridge.

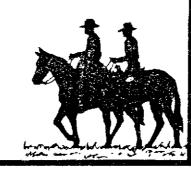

This cemetery is also a reminder of one of the great tragedies of the trail. The victims of an 1849 cholera epidemic are buried here. The epidemic wiped out 50 people from a large encampment. The stones are now broken and sun-bleached. The names are barely legible after over 100 years.

We passed the famous campsites of Scott Spring and Alcove Spring. Following the Little Blue out of Kansas, we traveled into Nebraska. We crossed Rock Creek, where Kit Carson and Fremont signed their names in the rock. Our first campsite in Nebraska was at Limestone Kiln north of Fairbury.

Our horses are becoming our good friends. The gray ones are now very colorful. From rainstorms and their sweat, the new leather of the reins and saddles have faded red onto them. They also have bright blue splashes from gall remedy and flourescent yellow contrasts from the fly-bite antibiotics. After finding a shady mulberry tree to roll under one hot afternoon, the colors changed into a rainbow with the addition of purple highlights.

This week we will travel along the Platte River valley. We have met a subtle milestone. Now when people visit with us, they say, "You've come a long way."

wing groups in the street war. The taxi driver was freed and reported the seizure, the source said. U.S. officials in Ankara said Morgan was in Beirut with a military delegation of Turkish, British and Iranian officers returning from a meeting of the Central Treaty Organization in Pakistan. The Beirut source said Morgan left his downtown hotel telling companions he was going to the airport to buy some magazines. The airport road passes close to a refugee camp that also is a Palestinian guerrilla base. Palestinian guerrilla and left-wing Moslem groups periodically set up armed roadblocks on the airport highway during their factional fighting with right-wing Christian militiamen.

U.S. Army records show Morgan, 43, was assigned to Turkey last August. He has been in the Army for more than 22 years, received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program at Virginia State College and holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland.

An air defense specialist, Morgan has attended the Army War College and spent one year in Vietnam attached to Army headquarters there. His home is in Petersburg, Va.

Chamoun issued an ultimatum to the Chiyah snipers to surrender or face "merciless" shooting by security forces with heavy weapons.

"I hold landlords and tenants of all buildings responsible for whatever shooting that occurs from their property." Chamoun warned.

Citizens were aiding security forces with tip-offs about locations of snipers and hideouts of hit-and-run street bombers, police reported.

The state radio advised citizens that all roads leading into the capital were now secure "with the exception of those from the districts of Chiyah and Sinn El Fil," areas of heaviest fighting. Many residents opened their windows to let in fresh air for the first time in eight days. Bakeries and groceries were jammed. Traffic returned to the thoroughfares, and workers began removing broken glass, debris and rotting garbage. Security patrols were removing barricades and roadblocks at Ein Rummaneh, Chiyah, Ashrafiyeh and other quarters devastated by the street clashes. Medical workers searched for corpses beneath debris at Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh, witnesses reported.

At midday, brief shooting broke out at the shopping centers of Pab Idriss and El Borj, where shops were quickly shuttered and pedestrians left the streets. Security patrols were rushed in. An hour later, the district was declared safe. Army tanks were sent to quell battles between Christians and Shiite Moslems at the village of El Kaa in the northern Bekaa valley. Karami said later that the situation was brought under control.

Nebraska EOC Rules Maternity Benefits Due

Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission (NEOC) has ruled that the Lincoln Public Schools discriminated against a teacher by denying her sick leave benefits during her pregnancy leave.

Janis Ristow, of 5621 Bristol Court, an Irving Junior High English teacher, filed the sex discrimination complaint in May

The commission action was taken at the NEOC meeting June 25 but was first announced Wednesday in a statement issued by the commission. Benefits Denied

In the statement, NEOC noted that the board had denied Mrs. Ristow 19 days of accumulated sick leave benefits during April 1974, when she was granted unpaid maternity leave from teaching duties.

"The commission decided," the statement said, "that disabilities caused by pregnancy and childbirth are temporary disabilities, and should be treated as such under any health or temporary disability insurance or sick leave plan" offered by the schools. "Denial of sick leave benefits to a woman because of her pregnancy constitutes sex discrimination and violates the Nebraska Fair Employment Prac-

The statement said NEOC recommended Mrs. Ristow be awarded her accumulated sick leave pay, about $980, and said it has ordered the public schools "to revise its sick leave policy regarding pregnancy in light of the commission's decision.'

LEA Test Case The Ristow complaint is a test case, supported by the Lincoln Education Association, against board policies on sick leave and maternity leave.

Supt. John Prasch and Board of Education attorney Edwin C. Perry said Wednesday neither the board nor Perry have been notified of the week-old order.

Commission Executive Director Lawrence R. Myers said the lack of notice to the board was a "clerical mistake" which occurred because former board attorney Willis Hecht is still listed as attorney of record in the case, and Hecht confirmed Wednesday that he had been notified, but Hecht said he assumed Perry was also notified since Perry had represented the district in hearing arguments and had submitted briefs since the case began.

Notification Disputed Myers said the district "never sent us anything" stating Perry was the district's attorney, but Hecht said he had notified the commission of the change in connection with another matter.

The Ristow case also was not originally listed on the agenda for the June 25 meeting; it was apparently placed unofficially on the agenda only the day before the meeting as the result of a reporter's

A hearing had been held on the case in January and in March City Councilman John Robinson, acting as hearing examiner, had recommended an order and decision in Mrs. Ristow's favor.

Appeal Authorized

The school board earlier authorized Perry to appeal an unfavorable ruling in Lancaster District Court, an option allowed within 30 days of notification. Myers said notice of the decision was sent to the board Wednesday after Perry inquired in response to inquiries resulting from the press statement on the decision. Perry said he would study the decision before commenting on a possible appeal. Prasch said he'll report the action to the board at its next regular meeting. Two new members, both women, have been elected to the board since the original decision on Mrs. Ristow's case was made.

The airport road passes close to a refugee camp that also is a Palestinian guerrilla base. Palestinian guerrilla and left-wing Moslem groups periodically set up armed roadblocks on the airport highway during their factional fighting with right-wing Christian militiamen.

U.S. Army records show Morgan, 43, was assigned to Turkey last August. He has been in the Army for more than 22 years, received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program at Virginia State College and holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland.

A six-man cabinet formed Monday under new Premier Rashid Karami concentrated on what Karami called "our prime objective: security.' Interior Minister Camille Chamour, a former president, gave security forces shoot-to-kill orders in their house-tohouse search for snipers. Several rooftop snipers were seized, police sources said. But several others were still active, particularly in Chiyah, one of the main districts of heavy

Chamoun issued an ultimatum to the Chiyah snipers to surrender or face "merciless" shooting by security forces with heavy weapons.

"I hold landlords and tenants of all buildings responsible for whatever shooting that occurs from their property," Chamoun warned.

Citizens were aiding security forces with tip-offs about locations of snipers and hideouts of hit-and-run street bombers, police reported.

The state radio advised citizens that all roads leading into the capital were now secure "with the exception of those from the districts of Chiyah and Sinn El Fil," areas of heaviest fighting.

Many residents opened their windows to let in fresh air for the first time in eight days. Bakeries and groceries were jammed. Traffic returned to the thoroughfares, and workers began removing broken glass, debris and rotting

Security patrols were removing barricades and roadblocks at Ein Rummaneh, Chiyah, Ashrafiyeh and other quarters devastated by the street clashes. Medical workers searched for corpses beneath debris at Chiyah and Ein Rummaneh, witnesses reported.

At midday, brief shooting broke out at the shopping centers of Bab Idriss and El Borj, where shops were quickly shuttered and pedestrians left the streets. Security patrols were rushed in. An hour later, the district was declared safe.

Army tanks were sent to quell battles between Christians and Shiite Moslems at the village of El Kaa in the northern Bekaa valley. Karami said later that the situation was brought under control.

The government announced by radio that banks and government offices will reopen Thursday.

Some businessmen said property damage and economic losses from the fighting could run as high as $4 billion. The Lebanese economy is based on banking, commerce, transportation and

Although the cease-fire appeared to be taking hold, left-wing groups are not represented in the new cabinet, and none of the basic issues which caused the fighting have been resolved.

The Phalange and other right-wing Christian groups say they are trying to prevent Communists and left-wing Moslems from taking over the country with the support of Marxists among Palestine guerrillas. The left-wing Moslems say they want a bigger say in government, and the guerrillas accuse the Phalange of trying to liquidate the guerrilla war against Israel.

Nebraska EOC Rules Maternity Benefits Due

Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission (NEOC) has ruled that the Lincoln Public Schools discriminated against a teacher by denying her sick leave benefits during her pregnancy leave.

Janis Ristow, of 5621 Bristol Court, an Irving Junior High English teacher, filed the sex discrimination complaint in May

The commission action was taken at the NEOC meeting June 25 but was first announced Wednesday in a statement issued by the commission. Benefits Denied

In the statement, NEOC noted that the board had denied Mrs. Ristow 19 days of accumulated sick leave benefits during April 1974, when she was granted unpaid maternity leave from teaching duties.

"The commission decided," the statement said, "that disabilities caused by pregnancy and childbirth are temporary disabilities, and should be treated as such under any health or temporary disability insurance or sick leave plan" offered by the schools.

"Denial of sick leave benefits to a woman because of her pregnancy constitutes sex discrimination and violates the Nebraska Fair Employment Practices Act."

The statement said NEOC recommended Mrs. Ristow be awarded her accumulated sick leave pay, about $980, and said it has ordered the public schools "to revise its sick leave policy regarding pregnancy in light of the commission's decision.

LEA Test Case The Ristow complaint is a test case, supported by the Lincoln Education Association, against board policies on sick leave and maternity leave.

Supt. John Prasch and Board of Education attorney Edwin C. Perry said Wednesday neither the board nor Perry have been notified of the week-old order.

Commission Executive Director Lawrence R. Myers said the lack of notice to the board was a "clerical mistake" which occurred because former board attorney Willis Hecht is still listed as attorney of record in the case, and Hecht confirmed Wednesday that he had been notified, but Hecht said he assumed Perry was also notified since Perry had represented the district in hearing arguments and had submitted briefs since the case began.

Notification Disputed Myers said the district "never sent us anything" stating Perry was the district's the commission of the change in connection with another matter. The Ristow case also was not originally listed on the agenda for the June 25 meeting; it was apparently placed unofficially on the agenda only the day before the meeting as the result of a reporter's

A hearing had been held on the case in January and in March City Councilman John Robinson, acting as hearing examiner, had recommended an order and decision in Mrs. Ristow's favor.

Appeal Authorized The school board earlier authorized Perry to appeal an unfavorable ruling in Lancaster District Court, an option allowed within 30 days of notification. Myers said notice of the decision was sent to the board Wednesday after Perry inquired in response to inquiries resulting from the press statement on the decision. Perry said he would study the decision before commenting on a possible appeal. Prasch said he'll report the action to the board at its next regular meeting. Two new members, both women, have been elected to the board since the original decision on Mrs. Ristow's case was made.

Garbage Piles Up In New York City

New York (UPI) - Piles of garbage rotting on sidewalks and monumental traffic jams caused by a wildcat strike in the highway department marked New York City's deepening labor crisis Wednesday.

Mayor Abe Beame and state officials continued to battle over the city budget. Beame claimed in a TV report to the city Wednesday night that "a number" of striking garbagemen had returned to work and were "collecting trash at designated points." And Sanitation Commissioner Robert T. Groh tried to boost a back-to-work movement by offering that garbagemen returning to work Thursday would not suffer the penalties possible under a state civil service law - loss of two days pay for each day out and some seniority. A total of 7,000 garbagemen are striking in project over the firing of 3,-000 others in Beame's July 1 budget cutdown, and it was not immediately clear how many had returned to work.

Democrat Beame, who is seeking to solve the city's budget crisis by getting additional taxing power from the state legislature, accused the Republican state legislative leadership of tying approval of his request to "another, unrelated piece of legislation" - a by-the-book protests or calling in "sick" to call attention to the firing of 2,000 from their ranks.

City Hall itself was barricaded with beefed-up police details and closed to visitors by officials who feared a repetition of Tuesday's unruly demonstration by some 500 fired police officers.

As tons of garbage stacked up, the city secured a temporary restraining order barring the sanitation union from continuing its wildcat strike. Union leaders insisted they had not authorized the strike.

About 19,000 public employes were cut from city payrolls as Mayor Beame struggled to convince the state legislature that New York City needed new taxing powers.

In Pennsylvania, the strike by members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal employes entered its second day, with union leaders and state officials still at a standoff on wage hikes.

The state workers are demanding a pay increase of about 10 or 11%. Gov. Milton J. Shapp has offered a 3.5% hike above the annual 5% hike most of the union members get automatically.

The state workers were joined in their strike by unions covering welfare workers and nurses. About 90,000 workers belong to the three unions, and conflicting reports as to the effectiveness of the strike made it impossible to estimate the number of workers off

State officials insisted only 50,000 workers were on strike, but union officials said all 90,000 were out.

The state won an injunction in Commonwealth Court that forced guards to go back to work at six state prisons where troopers had been called in. The state was also seeking at least four more injunctions that could force most of the persons who work in state schools for the mentally retarded and state hospitals back to work.

In Santa Clara County south of San Francisco, thousands of county workers ignored a temporary court order and staged their first strike for higher pay. The action by about 4,000 of the county's 10,000 employes threatened to cripple public services in 15 cities. In Memphis, Tenn., 2,400 AFSCME members threatened a strike at midnight Wednesday in demands for higher

Ford And The Price Of Gas

We've about come to the conclusion that a policy of discouraging consumption of gasoline by price will not work. People will keep complaining, but buying. And if the price goes so high and becomes so prohibitive that people of limited means can no longer afford enough fuel to take them to and from their jobs and to engage in necessary errands and some leisure pastimes, such a policy will have politically disastrous consequences. It seems to us that some form of allocation, rather than controlling consumption by price, would be more fair and preferrable - if this nation wants to operate under the assumption that it is desirable to lessen our dependence on foreign oil.

It's said, of course, that the reasoning behind raising gas prices is not only to discourage consumption but to make up the revenues thus lost so that the oil industry can uncover new sources of petroleum. We're still not absolutely sure what the financial picture of the oil companies looks like, but a layman's reading of figures would make it seem likely that most of them could afford expanded exploration and development at present revenue levels.

The filling station operators - those on the retail end who have to put up with customer wrath -- pointedly state that the oil companies which just raised prices again this week are just trying to reap additional profits at the peak consumption period; that the latest price increase is nothing more than an unjustified ripoff.

Most people, we think, will accept a "passing along the increased costs" argument for price increases during a time of inflation. Every producer of goods or provider of services does that.

What most people won't believe is that the oil industry doesn't make enough money to invest in discovering, producing and refining new oil.

Add to the pass-along the price increases forced by a threatened increase in the price of Arab oil, President Ford's increased import fees and his proposal to deregulate the price of some forms of oil and pretty soon the price of gasoline will get to a level that the oil industry and the President can't possibly justity. Ford can talk all he wants about the economy turning around and a strong recovery starting later this year. When gasoline reaches above 75¢ a gallon, he will be in big trouble, we'll bet. It may not be his fault. Perhaps he is dead right in trying to control consumption by price and in wanting to give producers more money to invest in greater domestic production.

But most people won't see it that way. A little thing like the price of gas could be very damaging politically for the nowpopular President.

The Outdoor Sauna Bath

In welcoming the Soviet and American junior track teams to Lincoln for their holiday weekend meet, we'll not apologize for the local weather.

Nebraska's weather aside from being unpredictable, can be wretchedly uncomfortable, as it has been for weeks now. The present jungle-like conditions are expected to remain throughout the weekend.

Not only the Russian youngsters, but Americans as well - everybody, it seems, but sprint sensation Houston McTear of hot and clammy Florida - are concerned about the climate.

But the volatile nature of conditions here; the tremendous difference in seasons are part of what makes Nebraska a great place to live. To paraphrase a local political writer, savage heat and savage cold make the mild seasons, spring and fall (sigh) all the more enjoyable. So, although the air may be too heavy for a record discus toss, this is it folks. We'll all suffer together.

And hopefully Lincoln's hospitality and the stimulating competition will make our guests forget about Lincoln being an outdoor sauna bath.

Talking about hospitality, by all accounts the Russians certainly know how to throw a press conference. It is something we in this country should pick up on.

Crisis Of Democracy

WASHINGTON — It is hard to travel in Europe these days, or even to live in Washington, without recognizing that liberal democracy is now in serious trouble in the world. We are living in a time of widespread doubt about the capacity of free societies to deal with the economic, political and philosophical problems of the age

Wherever you look, the leaders of the free world seem to be overwhelmed by the complexities of modern live, baffled by the demands of special interest groups, and inclined toward autocratic methods in handling their dilemmas.

In France, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is dining with the peasants and encouraging debates in the Chamber of Deputies on Foreign Policy, all of which looks good on the government-controlled French television. But meanwhile, he is weakening the civil service at the Quai d'Orsay and centralizing the control of foreign and domestic policy in his own hands, with the help of two or three loyal powerful heutenants, at the Elysee Palace

In Britain, Prime Minister Wilson has the opposite problem. With inflation running in his country at 25% a year, the highest in Europe, his Labor government cannot even get the cooperation of the labor unions to abide by their "social contract" in the national interest.

In Italy, the situation is even worse. The country is going broke under a weak democratic coalition, and the communists in the major cities are winning at the polls and insisting that the country cannot be governed against them or without them.

In Spain, after more than a generation of Franco's dictatorship, the forces of liberal democracy are crying for freedom, but across the border in Portugal, the "forces of freedom" are so divided and vicious with one another that the people are almost longing for the "order" of Salazar's dictatorship. All this is being hatched in Madrid with the uttermost care.

So there is a kind of counter-revolution against liberal democracy now going on in the world. We may not like this trend, or even admit it, but the liberal democracies are obviously in trouble with the voters. Even President Ford is now governing with a combination of vetoes and good intentions. The Europeans like him, because he is so plain and candid, compared to Johnson and Nixon, but the question they have been asking in the last few weeks is what will the American people do in the 1976 election? Europe is clearly hoping for a new beginning.

Secretary of State Kissinger fascinates and baffles the political leaders of Europe. He talks about the "defense of Western civilization." He argues for a new alliance in defense of Western ideals, and he rebukes the Europeans for trifling with America's fidelity to NATO.

They should not think, Kissinger said in Atlanta the other day, that they are "doing us a favor by remaining in alliance with us." They should listen to his words, he said, for they were chosen very carefully.

"Any ally," he said, "whose perception of its national interest changes will find us prepared to adapt or end our treaty relationship. No ally can pressure us by a threat of termination; we will not accept that its security is more important to us than it is to

On the 30th anniversary of the end of the last world war and the beginning of the United Nations, this was a bold and startling warning to the allies, but scarcely a newspaper in the United States printed the text of his speech, and the following day the White House said he didn't have any nation in mind, particularly, and was not threatening anybody.

 $\Rightarrow \Rightarrow \Rightarrow$ So, obviously, there is considerable confusion within the alliance, and not only within the alliance, but within the executive branch of the American government itself, and between the White House and the State Department and the Congress. This confusion in the democratic world seems to be general. India is just the latest symbol of the point. Confronted by frivolous charges, Prime Minister Gandhi imagined a crisis and then created one, not only for herself but for the whole democratic ideal. In the process, she has not only hurt herself and India's experiment with democracy, but has proved that women are almost as stupid as men, and probably put back the women's liberation movement by almost a generation.

It is interesting amidst all this turmoil in the Western world, how much officials in Europe still look to America for answers to this crisis of democracy and capitalism. They are pessimistic about the inflation, unemployment, and monetary chaos in the West, but they still keep asking what Washington is going to do about this, and particularly in the next election.

Will there be a new start next year in the United States, they ask. Is there another creative American political mind like that of the two Roosevelts or Woodrow Wilson, or is there a young man like Kennedy in the campaign of 1960 who has some vision of the world of the eighties? The West is looking for answers to these shortcomings of liberal democracy and particularly it is looking to the United States for suggestions, but so far in Washington we have no optimistic answers to give.

When one is a gardener, many experiences are stranger than fiction and provides a hearty laugh or two along the

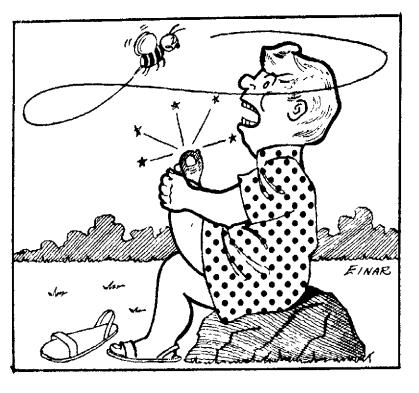

One true episode I heard today concerned the bee . . , not the bee in the bonnet but the bee in the grass. It seems a lady was walking through the yard enjoying the beauty of a perfect June day when a bee stung her on the toe. The pain was so intense and the surprise so overwhelming the lady said she just sat down and cried.

The other happening had a rather surprise ending like an O. Henry story. A lady purchased a packet of mixed flower seeds. She planted them and waited for the blooms of her efforts to shower her with beauty. However, such was not the case. Instead she found to her dismay mixed vegetables coming up in her flower bed. The label on her packet must have been in error or else the packaging department had a faulty machine. To my knowledge I have never seen a packet of mixed vegetables. Or perhaps there was one joker in the packaging department who thought the idea would make for a very interesting gardening project.

My small bed of flowers in front of the house has turned out to be more of a problem than a pleasure, especially one of the rows of flowers.

I began with a low growing front row of pansies followed by salvias. Next are zinnias and the "hexed" row that began with

Patchwork Prairie Country

Immediately after planting the that we would get another "gullylarkspur, we had a hard rain that promptly washed the seed out or packed and covered them so deep under the mud I was certain they would not grow. I replanted with a row of pinks. Again it rained, a drenching pouring rain that crusted the ground and made sprouting impossible.

The third time I scattered a packet of moss rose seed somewhat in a careless fashion thinking at least they would cover the sprouting weeds and fill in the bare spots. I just didn't think it was possible washer" and take out my seeds again but

Enough is enough, I decided. I took the hoe, chopped, deep-tilled around and between every place I could reach until I was satisfied that at least I had a few flowers in my garden.

Never in my wildest imagination did I think I scattered the seeds of three previous plantings all over the area. Moss rose is now peeking out amid the salvias, pinks are coming up in the zinnias and larkspur are side by side with the pansies, not to mention between the rows.

Now I have a weed problem again except I can't take the hoe and chop with wild abandon for the flowers are proud as defiant ladies daring me to cut them down after their valiant fight to live.

The only surprise left would be to see a wild onion among the weeds. I am almost afraid to look.

Farmers are beset with so many problems since the rains have deluged our area. The weeds are growing in the fields making a solid green mat between the rows of milo and soybeans. Farmers who irrigate cannot get in to hill their corn. Just about the time the fields dry enough for cultivation, it rains again. Since the soil is so saturated with water, a small shower of rain makes field work impossible.

The wheat is turning from green to a light golden color, bending and swaying in the wind. There is a slight rustle of the grain heads as they begin to ripen. Soon there will be the swish and whisper of the fields as the wind blows and dries the

If the weather clears, farmers here will be going in every direction attempting to beat the harvest by getting their row crops tilled. Long hours in the harvest fields are a must for farmers try to get their grain as soon as it has ripened. Farmers also punch time clocks . . . Mother Nature's clock. It never loses time nor stops.

WASHINGTON — The selling of Gerald R. Ford as a plausible president is well advanced. Under the management of the shrewd politicians and businessmen who comprise his "Kitchen Cabinet," Ford is being marketed as another Harry Truman, another honest, decent, friendly Middle Westerner who talks simply and acts on readily understandable human instincts.

This marketing strategy derives from the old maxim, "If all you have is lemons, make lemonade." Since Ford could hardly be presented as a leader of brilliant intellect, inspiring vision, or broad experience, the Truman ploy is about the best approach that could be devised. predecessor of 25 years ago, is a professional politician capable of a good deal more calculation and alert defense of his own interests than his amiable, homespun manner might suggest. ☆ ☆ ☆

One does not have to be an unqualified admirer of Truman, however, to discern at least two critical differences Behind the bourbon-drinking and bonhomie of the outgoing politician, Truman was a closet intellectual. A part of him never ceased to be the near-sighted boy who loved to read books and davdream about history. He became an inveterate reader of government reports, and his comments on men and issues were salty and pungent. He did not spend his Sundays playing golf with steel and automobile company lobbyists.

Ford A Long Way Short Of HST

Secondly, and much more important, Truman regarded himself as a political disciple of Andrew Jackson, as a tribune of the plain people of America the farmers, workers, and small businessmen, the blacks and the impoverished. Having been a farmer and having gone bankrupt himself as a clothing store proprietor in the recession of 1922, Truman had a lifelong sympathy for farmers and small businessmen in their struggle to get credit at reasonable rates. He would not have twice vetoed bills to control the strip mining that is now ravaging Western lands and water as it has already devastated Ap-

A doughty defender of the family-sized farm, Truman would be appalled by the current spectacle of thousands of small dairy farmers being squeezed off the land. He would not have as

Ford And The Price Of Gas

We've about come to the conclusion that a policy of discouraging consumption of gasoline by price will not work. People will keep complaining, but buying. And if the price goes so high and becomes so prohibitive that people of limited means can no longer afford enough fuel to take them to and from their jobs and to engage in necessary errands and some leisure pastimes, such a policy will have politically disastrous consequences. It seems to us that some form of allocation, rather than controlling consumption by price, would be more fair and preferrable - if this nation wants to operate under the assumption that it is desirable to lessen our dependence on foreign oil.

It's said, of course, that the reasoning behind raising gas prices is not only to discourage consumption but to make up the revenues thus lost so that the oil industry can uncover new sources of petroleum. We're still not absolutely sure what the financial picture of the oil companies looks like, but a layman's reading of figures would make it seem likely that most of them could afford expanded exploration and development at present revenue levels.

The filling station operators - those on the retail end who have to put up with customer wrath — pointedly state that the oil companies which just raised prices again this week are just trying to reap additional profits at the peak consumption period; that the latest price increase is nothing more than an unjustified ripoff.

Most people, we think, will accept a "passing along the increased costs" argument for price increases during a time of inflation. Every producer of goods or provider of services does that.

What most people won't believe is that the oil industry doesn't make enough money to invest in discovering, producing and refining new oil.

Add to the pass-along the price increases forced by a threatened increase in the price of Arab oil, President Ford's increased import fees and his proposal to deregulate the price of some forms of oil and pretty soon the price of gasoline will get to a level that the oil industry and the President can't possibly justify. Ford can talk all he wants about the economy turning around and a strong recovery starting later this year. When gasoline reaches above 75¢ a gallon, he will be in big trouble, we'll bet. It may not be his fault. Perhaps he is dead right in trying to control consumption by price and in wanting to give producers more money to invest in greater domestic production.

But most people won't see it that way. A little thing like the price of gas could be very damaging politically for the nowpopular President.

When one is a gardener, many experiences are stranger than fiction and provides a hearty laugh or two along the

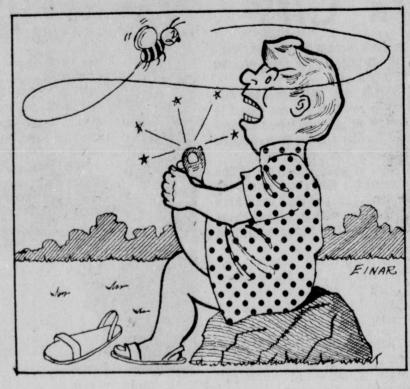

One true episode I heard today concerned the bee . . . not the bee in the bonnet but the bee in the grass. It seems a lady was walking through the yard enjoying the beauty of a perfect June day when a bee stung her on the toe. The pain was so intense and the surprise so overwhelming the lady said she just sat down and cried.

The other happening had a rather surprise ending like an O. Henry story. A lady purchased a packet of mixed flower seeds. She planted them and waited for the blooms of her efforts to shower her with beauty. However, such was not the case. Instead she found to her dismay mixed vegetables coming up in her flower bed. The label on her packet must have been in error or else the packaging department had a faulty machine. To my knowledge I have never seen a packet of mixed vegetables. Or perhaps there was one joker in the packaging department who thought the idea would make for a very interesting gardening project. * * *

My small bed of flowers in front of the house has turned out to be more of a problem than a pleasure, especially one of the rows of flowers.

I began with a low growing front row of pansies followed by salvias. Next are zinnias and the "hexed" row that began with

Patchwork Prairie Country

Immediately after planting the larkspur, we had a hard rain that promptly washed the seed out or packed and covered them so deep under the mud I was certain they would not grow. I replanted with a row of pinks. Again it rained, a drenching pouring rain that crusted the ground and made sprouting impossible

The third time I scattered a packet of moss rose seed somewhat in a careless fashion thinking at least they would cover the sprouting weeds and fill in the bare spots. I just didn't think it was possible that we would get another "gullywasher" and take out my seeds again but

Enough is enough, I decided. I took the hoe, chopped, deep-tilled around and between every place I could reach until I was satisfied that at least I had a few flowers in my garden.

Never in my wildest imagination did I think I scattered the seeds of three previous plantings all over the area. Moss rose is now peeking out amid the salvias, pinks are coming up in the zinnias and larkspur are side by side with the pansies,

Ford A Long Way Short Of HST

not to mention between the rows.

Now I have a weed problem again except I can't take the hoe and chop with wild abandon for the flowers are proud as defiant ladies daring me to cut them down after their valiant fight to live.

The only surprise left would be to see a wild onion among the weeds. I am almost afraid to look.

Farmers are beset with so many problems since the rains have deluged our area. The weeds are growing in the fields making a solid green mat between the rows of milo and soybeans. Farmers who irrigate cannot get in to hill their corn. Just about the time the fields dry enough for cultivation, it rains again. Since the soil is so saturated with water, a small shower of rain makes field work

The wheat is turning from green to a light golden color, bending and swaying in the wind. There is a slight rustle of the grain heads as they begin to ripen. Soon there will be the swish and whisper of the fields as the wind blows and dries the

If the weather clears, farmers here will be going in every direction attempting to beat the harvest by getting their row crops tilled. Long hours in the harvest fields are a must for farmers try to get their grain as soon as it has ripened. Farmers also punch time clocks . . . Mother Nature's clock. It never loses

The Outdoor Sauna Bath

In welcoming the Soviet and American junior track teams to Lincoln for their holiday weekend meet, we'll not apologize for the local weather.

Nebraska's weather aside from being unpredictable, can be wretchedly uncomfortable, as it has been for weeks now. The present jungle-like conditions are expected to remain throughout the weekend.

Not only the Russian youngsters, but Americans as well - everybody, it seems, but sprint sensation Houston McTear of hot and clammy Florida - are concerned about the climate.

But the volatile nature of conditions here; the tremendous difference in seasons are part of what makes Nebraska a great place to live. To paraphrase a local political writer, savage heat and savage cold make the mild seasons, spring and fall (sigh) all the more enjoyable. So, although the air may be too heavy for a record discus toss, this is it folks. We'll all suffer together.

And hopefully Lincoln's hospitality and the stimulating competition will make our guests forget about Lincoln being an outdoor sauna bath.

Talking about hospitality, by all accounts the Russians certainly know how to throw a press conference. It is something we in this country should pick up on.

WILLIAM V. SHANNON

WASHINGTON — The selling of Gerald R. Ford as a plausible president is well advanced. Under the management of the shrewd politicians and businessmen who comprise his "Kitchen Cabinet," Ford is being marketed as another Harry Truman, another honest, decent, friendly Middle Westerner who talks simply and acts on readily understandable human instincts.

This marketing strategy derives from the old maxim, "If all you have is lemons, make lemonade." Since Ford could hardly be presented as a leader sion, or broad experience, the predecessor of 25 years ago, is a ment. professional politician capable of a good deal more calculation and alert defense of his own interests than his amiable, homespun manner might suggest. * * *

One does not have to be an unqualified admirer of Truman, however, to discern at least two critical differences. Behind the bourbon-drinking and bonhomie of the outgoing politician, Truman was a closet intellectual. A part of him never ceased to be the near-sighted boy who loved to read books and daydream about history. He became an inveterate reader of government reports, and his comments on men and issues were salty and pungent. He did not spend his Sundays playing golf with steel and automobile company lobbyists.

Secondly, and much more important, Truman regarded himself as a political disciple of Andrew Jackson, as a tribune of the plain people of America the farmers, workers, and small businessmen, the blacks and the impoverished. Having been a farmer and having gone bankrupt himself as a clothing store proprietor in the recession of 1922, Truman had a lifelong sympathy for farmers and small businessmen in their struggle to get credit at reasonable rates. # Crisis Of Democracy

WASHINGTON - It is hard to travel in Europe these days, or even to live in Washington, without recognizing that liberal democracy is now in serious trouble in the world. We are living in a time of widespread doubt about the capacity of free societies to deal with the economic, political and philosophical problems of the age.

Wherever you look, the leaders of the free world seem to be overwhelmed by the complexities of modern live, baffled by the demands of special interest groups, and inclined toward autocratic methods in handling their dilemmas.

In France, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing is dining with the peasants and encouraging debates in the Chamber of Deputies on Foreign Policy, all of which looks good on the government-controlled French television. But meanwhile, he is weakening the civil service at the Quai d'Orsay and centralizing the control of foreign and domestic policy in his own hands, with the help of two or three loyal powerful lieutenants, at the Elysee Palace.

In Britain, Prime Minister Wilson has the opposite problem. With inflation running in his country at 25% a year, the highest in Europe, his Labor government cannot even get the cooperation of the labor unions to abide by their "social contract" in the national interest.

In Italy, the situation is even worse. The country is going broke under a weak democratic coalition, and the communists in the major cities are winning at the polls and insisting that the country cannot be governed against them or

In Spain, after more than a generation of Franco's dictatorship, the forces of liberal democracy are crying for freedom, but across the border in Portugal, the "forces of freedom" are so divided and vicious with one another that the people are almost longing for the "order" of Salazar's dictatorship. All this is being hatched in Madrid with the uttermost care.

So there is a kind of counter-revolution against liberal democracy now going on in the world. We may not like this trend, or even admit it, but the liberal democracies are obviously in trouble with the voters. Even President Ford is now governing with a combination of vetoes and good intentions. The Europeans like him, because he is so plain and candid, compared to Johnson and Nixon, but the question they have been asking in the last few weeks is what will the American people do in the 1976 election? Europe is clearly hoping for a new beginning.

Secretary of State Kissinger fascinates and baffles the political leaders of Europe. He talks about the "defense of Western civilization." He argues for a new alliance in defense of Western ideals, and he rebukes the Europeans for trifling with America's fidelity to NATO.

Atlanta the other day, that they are "doing us a favor by remaining in alliance with us." They should listen to his words, he said, for they were chosen very carefully.

"Any ally," he said, "whose perception of

On the 30th anniversary of the end of the last world war and the beginning of the United Nations, this was a bold and startling warning to the allies, but scarcely a newspaper in the United States printed the text of his speech, and the following day the White House said he didn't have any nation in mind, particularly, and was not threatening anybody. 公 公 公

This confusion in the democratic world seems to be general. India is just the latest symbut for the whole democratic ideal. In the process, she has not only hurt herself and Inand probably put back the women's liberation

It is interesting amidst all this turmoil in the Western world, how much officials in Europe still look to America for answers to this crisis of democracy and capitalism. They are pessimistic about the inflation, unemployment, and monetary chaos in the West, but they still keep asking what Washington is going to do about this, and particularly in the next election.

Will there be a new start next year in the United States, they ask. Is there another creative American political mind like that of the two Roosevelts or Woodrow Wilson, or is there a young man like Kennedy in the campaign of 1960 who has some vision of the world of the eighties? The West is looking for answers to these shortcomings of liberal democracy and particularly it is looking to the United States for suggestions, but so far in Washington we have no optimistic answers to give.

So, obviously, there is considerable confusion within the alliance, and not only within the alliance, but within the executive branch of the American government itself, and between the White House and the State Department and the

Enemy Comes In Big Sizes

Blair, Neb. I am just as critical as others or more of corporations, large or small, for taking advantage of both privilege and law. But an inference in the June 21 Star under the byline of Bob Guenther goes just a little too far. I quote: "Commission Chairman Eric Rasmussen opposed Sasek's dismissal and charged that the action had been inspired by the telephone companies, particularly Blair Telephone Company.'

Admittedly this utility company based in Blair didn't actually receive "favored treatment" by Sasek, but in fact some of his recommendations were downright unreasonable and unfair, everything considered. They went far beyond his expertise in the engineering field. But no one from Blair tried to get his scalp, whatever Mr. Rasmussen obviously in pique would have

The antics of our public commission, in light of their recent reversal of the firing of Mr. Sasek, are some typical of the barons of modern, extra-legal creation of fiats within our government structure.

While I'm sure this local telephone company is not without some sin, who isn't? It's the BIG corporations who are the enemy - or am I prejudiced, too?

Palmyra, Neb. During a recent lengthy trip by car, I decided to do some informal research on driver behavior. The findings - some fictionalized - may be of concern to those of us interested in law observance, faith in our government, voluntary energy conservation, and humanitarian values in general.

The results: (1) When I drove my car at my usual legal rate of 55 mph, 99.3% of other drivers passed me.

(2) The break-even point (50% of drivers passed me, and I passed 50%) was somewhere between 70 and 75 mph. (3) At 97 mph, nobody passed me. A highway patrol car DID

After the man who had dragged her into the alley ran off, the woman drove the car he had left running at the curb to police headquarters.

Her "moxie" in the Saturday night incident led to the arrest of a suspect in the case, police said Tuesday.

The woman told police she was walking home from her downtown job when a man drove by and asked her if she wanted a ride.

She refused, she said. Several blocks later the man stopped the car at the curb, walked to her and said something about getting a drink, she said.

Then he grabbed her by both wrists and tried to drag her into an alley near her home in north central Lincoln, the woman said. She said she fought with him and screamed when she saw her roommate. The man fled

The day after the incident police received a call from the owner of the car, who provided information which led to the arrest of Jesus Jose Tarın Mata, 19, of 2755 P St., Apt. 2.

Mata was charged with assault with intent to commit rape. A preliminary hearing on the charge was set for June 28. Bond was set at $3,000.

Her "moxie" in the Saturday night incident led to the arrest of a suspect in the case, police said Tuesday.

The woman told police she was walking home from her downtown job when a man drove by and asked her if she wanted a ride.

She refused, she said. Several blocks later the man stopped the car at the curb, walked to her and said something about getting a drink, she said.

Then he grabbed her by both wrists and tried to drag her into an alley near her home in north central Lincoln, the woman said. She said she fought with him and screamed when she saw her roommate. The man fled.

The day after the incident police received a call from the owner of the car, who provided information which led to the arrest of Jesus Jose Tarin Mata, 19, of 2755 P St., Apt. 2.

Mata was charged with assault with intent to commit rape. A preliminary hearing on the charge was set for June 28. Bond was set at $3,000.

Travel light. Almost everyone takes too much clothing, and that means the chance of having to carry virtually useless luggage. You'll find two small more or less equally weighted suitcases are much easier to handle than one large one.

Whenever you can, travel at flight will seem much more enjoyable if you take it on an uncrowded plane.

When you fly, don't forget how cool the air-conditioned interior of the plane can get. Wear a lightweight sweater for comfort

Any time your trip involves sitting for several hours at a time, plan to wear comfortable, loosefitting clothes. A constricting girdle or a wide, tight belt can actually inpeded circulation, and they feel something like a straitjacket after a few hours.

Every traveler should try to walk a few minutes every hour or two. Car users can plan short stops for stretching every two hours without adding any hardship.

On a train or plane, get up and walk up and down the aisle a few times. Stamp your feet and keep moving around for at least five minutes.

Hot weather travelers should work at drinking water to keep cooler, to avoid heat exhaustion. If you are traveling abroad, however, heed your doctor's warning about what and what not to drink.

Soft bottled drinks may be best, then, but in general we should avoid drinking too many of them. They are not true thirst quenchers. Sedentary travelers don't usually need the extra calories they provide, and water is better for you.

One thing that is sure to make your vacation more pleasant, no matter where you go or what you do is this: pace yourself.

Don't try and do everything the first day. If you're getting back to some activity you haven't engaged in for a time, give your good body a break take it slow and easy.

You and anyone you travel with will have a good time as long as you don't overdo and get overtired. Be good to yourself.

LT&T Roasted By Customers

Star Staff Writer

The Public Service Commission Wednesday fielded a flurry of complaints about Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co service, particularly in the Clay Center and Davenport areas

Eight persons aired their gripes about telephone service at a hearing on LT&T's application for a $5.5 million rate increase. a cut-off," he said. including a 10% to 15% boost in local service charges.

The hearing will resume at 9 30 a m. Thursday if additional citizen witnesses wish to be heard.

The commission staff will present its case next week

Formal Case Finished LT&T completed its formal presentation Wednesday, although attorney Bert Overcash indicated that the company will submit additional information at next week's hearings

Customer complaints were voiced by three persons from Clay Center, four from Davenport and one from Lincoln

"I don't believe the service rendered justifies the amount" of the proposed rate increase, Robert Wills of Lincoln told the commission. He suggested that the local service rate hike be limited to 54%. Equipment Suspect

Wills said he thinks service difficulties result from equipment problems.

Clay Center witnesses cited service disruptions, cut-offs in the midst of telephone conversations, delays in obtaining an operator, severe static on the

"If I called (the phone company) every time I had trouble, I'd be calling them three times a day six times a week."

Earle Stoddard, president of the Clay Center Community Club, said he has problems with "about 30% of the calls I make."

Overcash noted that cut-off's on long distance calls could result from problems outside LT&T's area. The Davenport witnesses said they have experienced similar problems, including difficulty in

'Better Equipment'

"If they want a rate increase, they'd better get better equipment first," Roger Nelson told the commission

"If I ran my business like LT&T has." Eldon Johnson said. "I wouldn't be a farmer today " Johnson said he believes the company tries to operate with 'obsolete equipment.''

Increases Explained Earlier Wednesday, LT&T Second Vice President Charles Arnold outlined for the commissioners some of the increases in charges proposed in the company's application.

The basic increase is the 10% to 15% hake in local service

Other increases affect temporary disconnection service for vacationers, non-published and non-listed telephone number service, color phone charges, service connection charges and monthly rates for mobile and pager service, lamp and key service and paging systems

Manager Of Symphony In as a violation or in fact would be Omaha Quits Omaha (AP) — It appears that the Omaha Symphony Orchestra has become embroiled in another "personality" spat. James Roland, symphony general manager for the past two years, says he has left the organization after being asked to Roland said the resignation request was made by Dr. Hal Mardis, the new president of the Omaha Symphony Association. Roland said no reason for the resignation request was given, ductor of the orchestra, Thomas Bricetti, was "probably" behind the request that he step down.

Bricetti, in town looking for a new home, declined to comment on Roland's accusation.

Roland said he thinks Bricetti wants to take over the entire symphony operation, including the duties of general manager.

Mardis said Roland has been a good manager, but added that Roland's effectiveness has not been "sufficient for the re-

Omaha (AP) - An Omaha man was charged Wednesday in connection with a Tuesday evening traffic mishap that took the life of another Omahan.

Charges of misdemeanor motor vehicle homicide and leaving the scene of a personal injury accident were filed against Robert F. Adams.

The charges stemmed from a three-vehicle crash on the city's west side.

Timothy Kinsley, 20, one of the drivers involved in the mishap, died in an Omaha hospital early Wednesday of the massive Diesin Holdrege head injuries he suffered in the accident.

Witnesses told police the accident occurred when a small truck being driven by Adams turned left in front of Kingsley's Jeep. After colliding with the Adams vehicle, Kinsley's vehicle was pushed into the oncoming traffic lane, and struck a van

Employe Suggestions Can Mean Company $avings

By LINDA OLIG Star Staff Writer

Suggestions anyone? To many employes suggestion boxes are as common as the time clock and charity drives. But they are one means of offering employes a direct voice in company operations. The suggestion box is the receptacle for time - or money-savings ideas, for morale boosters, for complaints and gripes. Suggestions range from better eats in the employe cafeteria to energy conservation. Several Lincoln employers have recently instituted the suggestion box; some, however, have forsaken the time-worn box itself for a more sophisticated "form" system for fielding employe ideas; others have none at all, according to a spot survey conducted by The Star. Most employers who have some form of suggestion system say they like it. The results run the gamut: The good and the bad, the possible and the impossible.

It's a two-way street. Everyone benefits the employe and the company. Big Savings

Dorsey Laboratories, for one, has saved about $50,000 by implementing employe-generated changes since its suggestion system was begun three years ago.

The employes are competitive when it comes to making suggestions.

And why not? Some get rewards for their brain storms.

The suggestion system is run on an incentive basis. Awards for employes coming up with acceptable suggestions have totaled more than $8,800 — just a drop in the bucket compared to savings to the company in the long run, said Joe Smith, Dorsey's supervisor of retail services.

Needless to say, "They treat it seriously," he

The suggestion system runs like this: Employes receive forms which are filled out as ideas crop up. Once the detailed suggestions are submitted, the secretary of the suggestion committee numbers the form and deletes the name, then refers the idea to the department affected by the suggested change; departmental input is referred back to the committee for the final deci-

Among the 96 suggestions receiving the committee's stamp of approval have been a plan that helped save half a million gallons of water a month, one for more efficient allocation of warehouse space, and still another that called for installing two-way mirrors at intersections.

Other businesses, too, have implemented similar suggestions systems. And the results have been impressive.

The home office of a large insurance company implemented one employe's suggestion that helped cut the cost of long distance phone calls. Employes there are rewarded with 50% of the first year savings

Boxes Scattered

Goodyear has suggestion boxes scattered across the plant, mostly near time clocks, said Don Hart, safety engineer who processes the

He said 15-20% of the ideas are eventually implemented. There, employes are awarded 10% of the annual savings generated by their ideas. Some employers say they get suggestions that are "weird, comical, way out in left field." But most play it straight, Hart said. The majority of suggestions from Goodyear employes focus on energy conservation, safety, product improvement and material quality, he said.

Lincoln General Hospital's suggestion box has been in place for nearly a year now.

Roger Winn, personnel director at the hospital, said he's sold on the idea because it gives "another avenue for employes to verbalize their concerns." And they do take advantage of the opportunity. "Some (suggestions) are good ones," he said.

One thing they do is often create more work for Winn. But he's not complaining. One suggestion asked for an informational article in layman's terms on the company's health inhad been overlooked. Winn complied. NBC Trys Plan said Tom Alexander, personnel director.

A suggestion box did exist, but it was taken down when the old building was vacated to make room for the wrecking ball and the new structure,

When the box was removed, many old suggestions, including some yellowed with age, were discovered. "We got some kicks out of them." Alexander said. "There were some ridiculous ideas.' But suggestions wasn't all they found. There were pieces of waste paper and other non-suggestive items, too. Right now, NBC employes are urged to refer their suggestions to supervisors. But things may be changing . . . again.

NBC's marketing staff has dreamed up a scheme aimed at getting more employe input. Sometime soon the 425 employes will be asked to participate in a contest to help the bank improve services and operations.

Prizes will be awarded to the best, the most innovative, the greatest morale-boosting, and the most obvious, but overlooked, suggestion.

But wait . . . there's more.

Also honored will be the worst suggestion —

Let Common Sense Dictate Church Dress

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if there is a dress code for church. What is permitted and what isn't?

My sister, who is 29 and married, came to church last Sunday wearing a halter-type dress that showed about three inches of her bare middle.

This sister came to church a few minutes after Mom was seated, and when Mom saw Sis in this outfit, she burst into tears and didn't lift up her head for the whole service. Afterwards, Mom went home and cried all day. She says she is sure Sis is going to the devil.

Maybe I'm of another generation (I am 22), but I didn't think my sister did anything so terribly by coming to church dressed that way. The church is very hot and has no air conditioning. Maybe if the church officials let people dress more comfortably, they would have better attendance in the summer. What do you think?

WARM IN GA. DEAR WARM: Common sense and a little old-fashioned respect for a house of worship is all the dress code necessary. Your sister shouldn't have exposed her middle, your mother shouldn't have cried all day and all the churches in Georgia should be airconditioned to discourage bare middles-and the devil.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me some of the most common clues to look for if I already suspect (which I do) that my wife is meeting another man somewhere during the day?

I am not an overly suspicious man, so you will not be generating trouble where none

In this case, simply asking her will not help. SUSPICIOUS IN DALLAS DEAR SUSPICIOUS: If a woman gets all dressed up to go "shopping," comes home slightly late and out of breath, has no packages and is wearing her pantyhose inside out, I'd wonder where she'd been.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Another solution to "Prune Face," that doctor's wife who wanted a face-lift, but whose husband said no because he didn't want her to look like his "daughter"

Persuade the good doctor to join his wife and get a face-lift, too! We'd just as soon you didn't use our names, but it's no secret to our friends and family that my wife and I had a "joint job." We shared the same room and nurses - and were delighted with the results

We were in our mid-50s at the time. It didn't hurt a bit except when I wrote out the check. "Do the best with what you've got (left)," we say. SINALOA, MEXICO

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-yearold girl and would like your advice on a problem I am confused

Is it right for a girl my age to accept a present from a boy she has never met? Mike is 21, and a good friend of my cousin's. She said Mike saw a picture of me, and he just flipped over it, so he bought a present for me. His problem is that he is very shy. Should I accept it or not?

DEAR CONFUSED: No. Tell your cousin that you would be pleased to meet Mike, but you don't accept gifts from strangers (even shy ones).

CONFUSED

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. For Abby's booklet, "How to

Here is a hand from a fourtable team of four match. At Tables 1 and 2, the bidding went as shown and South got to five hearts doubled.

Had West led a club, declarer would have gone down two -300 points. But both Wests led a spade, partner's suit, and as a result collected only 100 points.

At Table 3, where the bidding started the same way, West bid five spades over five hearts, showing full faith and con-fidence in partner's vulnerable four spade bid. North doubled won his partner's king of hearts lead with the ace, but later scored only his ace of trumps. The outcome was that East made five spades doubled, worth 850 points. At Table 4, there was even more dramatic action. Here, when the bidding went 14-44-50, West expressed considerably more confidence in his partner's four spade bid than his counterpart at the previous table. He went to six spades over five hearts!

Moreover, his judgment proved to be excellent when East made the slam, scoring 1,660 points! South had a difficult choice of opening leads and decided on a club, the suit his partner had bid, rather than a heart. It was a highly unfortunate choice, and the lead cost his side 1,860 points.

The deal illustrates how different players facing precisely the same circumstances react in different ways. All four Wests had to contend with a five heart bid by South. The first two Wests doubled - incorrectly, in our opinion - the third West raised partner to five spades with only a singleton trump, while the fourth West went bravely on to six. Who was right, you ask? Obviously, the West at Table 4. Never argue with results!

She Keeps A Black Book

By LYNN ZERSCHLING Star Staff Writer

She carts around a spiral notebook, scribbling down seemingly incomprehensible notes. She keeps a black book full of telephone numbers.

She's on the job before most of her employes show up at work, and she's among the last to leave.

She's added some potted plants and a conference table to her office on the third floor of the County-City Building.

But, those changes in office decor made by Helen Boosalis in her embryonic six weeks in office apparently will be minor compared to other changes in the offing.

As the recently elected mayor of Lincoln, Mrs. Boosalis has lots of ideas, lots of questions, lots of people to talk to and, more ideas. Ideas like staggering work hours at City Hall to cut down on traffic congestion on city streets at rush hours.

Ideas like asking employes for suggestions on how to better their jobs and increase efficiency.

Ideas like getting more Lincolnites involved in city govern-

Since May 19

Since taking office May 19, Mayor Boosalis said in an interview, she has asked various city department heads to develop plans to put those ideas into action.

She's also asked department heads to work out a plan to encourage employes to ride the bus to work or ride in carpools. Mayor Boosalis already is setting the example. Most days she takes the

In mid-budget year, the mayor said she wants to reallocate money appropriated for certain projects which, for some reason, are not yet built. That way, she figures, the money can help get other projects constructed.

Mayor Boosalis also is planning on naming her own energy committee which will work on ways to encourage Lincolnites and businesses to cut energy consumption. The committee appointed by her predecessor during the energy crisis last year has fizzled out.

And, in addition to doing all that, she wants the city to take a stepped up role in bringing new industry into town, and to work with the industry already located here. An economic development division would do that job, the mayor has said, and she is pushing for the creation of such a division under the Department of Community Development.

City Budget A major chunk of the mayor's time has been spent hammering out, mulling over and discussing the city budget.

Drawing up the city's multi-million dollar budget is important, she said, because, "We're setting policy for the entire year and right now, it's mainly a matter of rushing through it."

The mayor has directed all department heads to cut the fat out of the budget in anticipation of the City Council's and her own holdthe-line budget policy. Costs are skyrocketing, revenues aren't. Since sitting in the mayor's office, Mayor Boosalis said she is amazed at the amount of administrative detail she's absorbed.

After serving 16 years on the City Council, the council veteran felt she was informed.

"But not to the detail you get at this level." Mrs. Boosalis, known as a hard worker as a lawmaker, is keeping to the grindstone now. Sometimes, she guesses, she puts in 16 hours a day.

Bounces Back

"I get a little tired now and then," she admits, "But, I bounce back the next day.'

And she loves it. Her sense of humor helps carry her through long meetings and discussions, her quick laugh and flashing brown eyes seldom dull. One day she was wearing only one gold hoop earring. Scooping up the other from among a clump of papers on her desk she pointed

Although the former mayor seldom attended council meetings, Mrs. Boosalis plans to attend as many as possible.

Since the mayor can veto actions of the council, she believes "it's important to get all the facts on why a decision was made." "It's one good way to get the pulse of the people."

A Little Smoother

Her presence seems to help governmental machinery run a little smoother.

If the council wants to know what the mayor's position is on some issue, she pops from her front row seat and tells them. If the council wants an answer to some question, she's there to

Employe Suggestions Can Mean Company $avings

Star Staff Writer

Suggestions anyone?

To many employes suggestion boxes are as common as the time clock and charity drives. But they are one means of offering employes a direct voice in company operations.

The suggestion box is the receptacle for time or money-savings ideas, for morale boosters, for complaints and gripes. Suggestions range from better eats in the employe cafeteria to energy conservation.

Several Lincoln employers have recently instituted the suggestion box; some, however, have forsaken the time-worn box itself for a more sophisticated "form" system for fielding employe ideas; others have none at all, according to a spot survey conducted by The Star.

Most employers who have some form of suggestion system say they like it. The results run the gamut: The good and the bad, the possible and the impossible.

It's a two-way street. Everyone benefits the employe and the company.

Big Savings

Dorsey Laboratories, for one, has saved about $50,000 by implementing employe-generated changes since its suggestion system was begun three years ago.

The employes are competitive when it comes to making suggestions.

And why not? Some get rewards for their brain storms.

The suggestion system is run on an incentive basis. Awards for employes coming up with acceptable suggestions have totaled more than $8,800 — just a drop in the bucket compared to savings to the company in the long run, said Joe Smith, Dorsey's supervisor of retail services.

Needless to say, "They treat it seriously," he said.

The suggestion system runs like this: Employes receive forms which are filled out as ideas crop up. Once the detailed suggestions are submitted, the secretary of the suggestion committee numbers the form and deletes the name, then refers the idea to the department affected by the suggested change; departmental input is referred back to the committee for the final deci-

Among the 96 suggestions receiving the committee's stamp of approval have been a plan that helped save half a million gallons of water a month, one for more efficient allocation of warehouse space, and still another that called for installing two-way mirrors at intersections.

Other businesses, too, have implemented similar suggestions systems. And the results have been impressive.

The home office of a large insurance company implemented one employe's suggestion that helped cut the cost of long distance phone calls. Employes there are rewarded with 50% of the first year savings.

Boxes Scattered

Goodyear has suggestion boxes scattered across the plant, mostly near time clocks, said Don Hart, safety engineer who processes the

He said 15-20% of the ideas are eventually implemented. There, employes are awarded 10% of the annual savings generated by their ideas. Some employers say they get suggestions that are "weird, comical, way out in left field." But most play it straight, Hart said. The majority of suggestions from Goodyear employes provement and material quality, he said.

Roger Winn, personnel director at the hospital, said he's sold on the idea because it gives "another avenue for employes to verbalize their concerns." And they do take advantage of the opportunity. "Some (suggestions) are good ones," he said.

One thing they do is often create more work for Winn. But he's not complaining. One suggestion asked for an informational article in layman's terms on the company's health insurance plan. It was an obvious idea, but one that had been overlooked. Winn complied NBC Trys Plan formalized suggestion process. Not anymore. A suggestion box did exist, but it was taken down when the old building was vacated to make room for the wrecking ball and the new structure, said Tom Alexander, personnel director.

National Bank of Commerce doesn't have a

When the box was removed, many old suggestions, including some yellowed with age, were discovered. "We got some kicks out of them," Alexander said. "There were some ridiculous ideas."

But suggestions wasn't all they found. There were pieces of waste paper and other nonsuggestive items, too.

Right now, NBC employes are urged to refer their suggestions to supervisors. But things may be changing . . . again.

NBC's marketing staff has dreamed up a scheme aimed at getting more employe input. Sometime soon the 425 employes will be asked to participate in a contest to help the bank improve services and operations.

Prizes will be awarded to the best, the most innovative, the greatest morale-boosting, and the most obvious, but overlooked, suggestion.

But wait . . . there's more.

Also honored will be the worst suggestion and the funniest!

Let Common Sense Dictate Church Dress

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if there is a dress code for church. What is permitted and what isn't?

My sister, who is 29 and married, came to church last Sunday wearing a halter-type dress that showed about three inches of her bare middle.

This sister came to church a few minutes after Mom was seated, and when Mom saw Sis in this outfit, she burst into tears and didn't lift up her head for the whole service. Afterwards, Mom went home and cried all day. She says she is sure Sis is going to the devil.

Maybe I'm of another generation (I am 22), but I didn't think my sister did anything so terribly by coming to church dressed that way. The church is very hot and has no air conditioning. Maybe if the church officials let people dress more comfortably, they would have better attendance in the summer. What do you think?

WARM IN GA. DEAR WARM: Common sense and a little old-fashioned respect for a house of worship is all the dress code necessary. Your sister shouldn't have exposed her middle, your mother shouldn't have cried all day and all the churches in Georgia should be airmiddles—and the devil. DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me some of the most common clues to look for if I already suspect (which I do) that my wife is meeting another man conditioned to discourage bare somewhere during the day? I am not an overly suspicious man, so you will not be generating trouble where none

In this case, simply asking her will not help.

SUSPICIOUS IN DALLAS DEAR SUSPICIOUS: If a woman gets all dressed up to go "shopping," comes home slighthy late and out of breath, has no packages and is wearing her pantyhose inside out, I'd wonder where she'd been.

dear abby

Persuade the good doctor to join his wife and get a face-lift, too! We'd just as soon you didn't use our names, but it's no secret to our friends and family that my wife and I had a "joint job." We shared the same foom and nurses - and were delighted with the results.

We were in our mid-50s at the time. It didn't hurt a bit except when I wrote out the check.

"Do the best with what you've got (left)," we say.

Here is a hand from a fourtable team of four match. At Tables 1 and 2, the bidding went as shown and South got to five hearts doubled.

Had West led a club, declarer would have gone down two 🗻 300 points. But both Wests led a spade, partner's suit, and as a liected only 100 points.

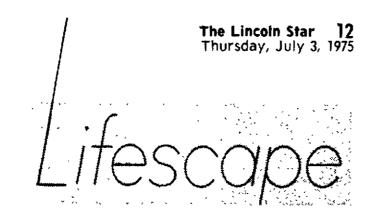

ie 3, where the bidding he same way, West-bid ides over five hearts, four spade bid. North doubled won his partner's king of hearts lead with the ace, but later scored only his ace of trumps. The outcome was that East made five spades doubled, worth 850 points.

At Table 4, there was even more dramatic action. Here, when the bidding went 14-44-West expressed con-5V. siderably more confidence in his partner's four spade bid than his counterpart at the previous table. He went to six spades over five hearts!

Moreover, his judgment proved to be excellent when East made the slam, scoring 1,660 points! South had a difficult choice of opening leads West and decided on a club, the suit Dble his partner had bid, rather than a heart. It was a highly unfortunate choice, and the lead cost his side 1,860 points.

The deal illustrates how different players facing precisely the same circumstances react in different ways. All four Wests had to contend with a five heart bid by South. The first two Wests doubled - incorrectly, in our opinion - the third West raised partner to five spades with only a singleton trump, while the fourth West went bravely on to six. Who was right, you ask! Obviously, the West at Table 4 Nover argue with results!

Blaze Damages Studnicka Home

A fire, apparently started by a boy playing with matches, did considerable damage to the James H. Studnicka home, 6837 Ballard, Wednesday afternoon, fire officials said.

Firemen said the fire started in a bedooom closet, where Studnicka's son Phillip, 10, was playing. It spread into the bedroom and did considerable smoke damage to two bedrooms and a hallway.

She Keeps A Black Book

By LYNN ZERSCHLING Star Staff Writer

She carts around a spiral notebook, scribbling down seemingly incomprehensible notes. She keeps a black book full of telephone

She's on the job before most of her employes show up at work, and she's among the last to leave.

She's added some potted plants and a conference table to her office on the third floor of the County-City Building.

But, those changes in office decor made by Helen Boosalis in her embryonic six weeks in office apparently will be minor compared to other changes in the offing. As the recently elected mayor of Lincoln, Mrs. Boosalis has lots of ideas, lots of questions, lots of people to talk to and, more ideas. Ideas like staggering work hours at City Hall to cut down on traffic congestion on city streets at rush hours. Ideas like asking employes for suggestions on how to better their jobs and increase efficiency. Ideas like getting more Lincolnites involved in city govern-

Since May 19

Since taking office May 19, Mayor Boosalis said in an interview, she has asked various city department heads to develop plans to put those ideas into action.

She's also asked department heads to work out a plan to encourage employes to ride the bus to work or ride in carpools. Mayor Boosalis already is setting the example. Most days she takes the

In mid-budget year, the mayor said she wants to reallocate money appropriated for certain projects which, for some reason, are not yet built. That way, she figures, the money can help get other projects constructed.

Mayor Boosalis also is planning on naming her own energy committee which will work on ways to encourage Lincolnites and businesses to cut energy consumption. The committee appointed by her predecessor during the energy crisis last year has fizzled out.

And, in addition to doing all that, she wants the city to take a stepped up role in bringing new industry into town, and to work with the industry already located here. An economic development division would do that job, the mayor has said, and she is pushing for the creation of such a division under the Department of Community Development.

A major chunk of the mayor's time has been spent hammering out, mulling over and discussing the city budget.

> Ahrens says the idea for the project started when people working with the elderly noticed beautiful hand-sewn objects for sale in the gift shops of public housing projects for the aged. Orders from big department stores are filled by only 169 women, some of whom turn out one small animal a week and some, an animal a day.

The project is not yet selfsustaining. The women are given their raw sewing materials free, and are paid most of the wholesale price of their work. For example, they get $1.90 of the $2.50 price of a small animal that takes 45 minutes to make.

More women are being recruited for the project. Ahrens figures that 400 could produce enough work to bring in $300,000 or more a year, which would enable the project to break even.

The group already has a board of directors. It includes both Illinois senators, Adlai Stevenson and Charles Percy, and many of the city's top business leaders.

"These women are really proud to see their work sold in these stores," Ahrens says. "None of this is being sold on sympathy, it's being sold on Drawing up the city's multi-million dollar budget is important, she said, because, "We're setting policy for the entire year and right now, it's mainly a matter of rushing through it.

The mayor has directed all department heads to cut the fat out of the budget in anticipation of the City Council's and her own holdthe-line budget policy. Costs are skyrocketing, revenues aren't.

Since sitting in the mayor's office, Mayor Boosalis said she is amazed at the amount of administrative detail she's absorbed. After serving 16 years on the City Council, the council veteran felt she was informed.

"But not to the detail you get at this level."

Mrs. Boosalis, known as a hard worker as a lawmaker, is keeping to the grindstone now. Sometimes, she guesses, she puts in 16 hours a day.

Bounces Back

"I get a little tired now and then," she admits, "But, I bounce back the next day."

And she loves it. Her sense of humor helps carry her through long meetings and discussions, her quick laugh and flashing brown eyes seldom dull.

One day she was wearing only one gold hoop earring. Scooping up the other from among a clump of papers on her desk she pointed out the second earring didn't match the first.

"I was in such a hurry this morning, I goofed," she laughingly

In addition to keeping a list of people who call her during the day so she can get back to them, she carries around a notebook, writing notes to herself.

She's at her busiest taking notes on Monday afternoons as she sits on the other side of the council table — a spectator after 16 vears

Although the former mayor seldom attended council meetings, Mrs. Boosalis plans to attend as many as possible.

Since the mayor can veto actions of the council, she believes "it's important to get all the facts on why a decision was made." "It's one good way to get the pulse of the people." A Little Smoother

Her presence seems to help governmental machinery run a little smoother.

If the council wants to know what the mayor's position is on some issue, she pops from her front row seat and tells them.

If the council wants an answer to some question, she's there to

Group members, whose average age is 75, work through a nonprofit corporation called Elder Artisans.

They crochet attractive little mice, ducks, roosters, donkevs and assorted other beasts which wholesale for $2.50 to $22, depending on size. They knit elegant pure wool coats (as warm as fur) which wholesale for $300, short wool jackets wholesaling for $125, and matching cloche hats.

Their work is of such quality it has been snapped up by top stores across the nation, including Neiman-Marcus, Bloomingdale's, Bergdorf Goodman, Garfinckels, Marshall Field, I. Magnin, L.S. Ayres and Bullock's.

The project started in 1972 in the mayor's office for senior citizens. It still is dependent on the city for funding. However, Robert J. Ahrens, director of the city's senior citizens program, believes Elder Artisans can be self-sustaining and doing a $300,-000 to $350,000 annual business within the next year or two.

Much of her time is spent cutting ribbons, greeting visitors, attending lunches and banquets.

U.S. Favored On Charts

By BOB OWENS Star Sports Editor

The United States junior track and field team will score victories in both men's and women's events during competition against the Russian juniors Friday and Saturday at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

That's the conclusion drawn from a comparison of times, heights and distances made available to newsmen in Lincoln earlier this week.

The Lincoln Star's "Dope Sheet" is based on performances of American athletes in qualifying meets for the men at Knoxville, Tenn., and for the women at White Plains, N.Y.

Russian times were released to meet officials here by Soviet coach Oleg Konstantinov.

The most surprising thing in the tabulation by events is that the United States women have made such giant strides in a period of just one year.

They were beaten last June in this annual meet in Austin, Tex., by an 82-64 margin and won just relays. That was 15 points better than form chart predictions.

This year, the chart shows the U.S. ladies will take six in-78½ to 69½.

The Russian coach will be made to look good on a state- relays. ment he made Tuesday when the final men's tally is made. "In the long run, it (USSR men's team) will resemble last year's team," Konstantinov said.

The "dope sheet" has the American men scoring on emore point than they did a year ago and the Russians picking up three points. The U.S. men won at Austin 133-99 and it figures to triumph here 134-102.

Reason for the discrepency in points is that the American 440 relay team was disqualified when it dropped the baton between the third and fourth leg.

The overall dual meet score, including both men and woman. figures out to U.S. 2121/2, USSR 1711/2. Last year the U.S. overall margin was 197-181.

One American and one Russian man will be attempting to defend titles won last year at Austin, but the form chart says they probably won't repeat.

Eric Hulst, 17-year-old high school junior from Laguna Beach, Calif., figures to have a chance, though, since both he and Rudy Chape of Hammond, Ind., were clocked in identical time at Knoxville in the 10,000 meter run. The judges decision went to Chapa.

Russian triple jumper Valdimir Perevalov won with a leap of 51-4, but faces the threat three individual events and two of losing to American Paul Jordan of Philadelphia, Pa., who went 52-8 at Knoxville. Perevalov and Jerome Hutchins of Macon, Ga., who was second

By RANDY YORK

To Will Willoughby, it isn't a question of IF Houston McTear can break nine seconds in the 100-yard dash. It's a question of WHEN.

"I know he'll do it. It's just a matter of time. He'll get it done before he graduates from high school," Willoughby predicted Wednesday during an American junior track practice

Willoughby is McTear's track coach at Baker High School near Milligan (Fla.)

So far this year, the 18-year-old senior-to-be has accomplished 10:09.3's, a pair of:09.2's and a pending world record of :09.0 in the 100.

"No one comes out of the blocks right every time," Willoughby said, "but when Houston comes out of the blocks right, no one in the world can beat him."

McTear will run the 100 meters Friday (at 5:55 p.m.) and anchor the American 400-meter relay (at 6:50 p.m.) against the Soviet Union at Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

"He's said more than once he really wants to whip the Russians," his coach related. "You can't tell what's going to happen, but I know he's primed and ready to compete."

McTear owns the second fastest 100-meter clocking ever recorded electronically. He was credited with :09.96 in THE LINCOLN STAR - qualifying competition for the Russian dual at Knoxville, Tenn. Jim Ray Hines, 1968 Olympic gold medalist at Mexico City, has the fastest 100-meter clocking (:09.95).

Willoughby hopes conditions are right for McTear to challenge the world record Friday. The US-USSR dual could be an ideal opportunity, he added.

'Houston has always run better in the prelims than the finals," his coach noted. "His :09.0 was in the prelims. So was his :09.96 in the 100 meters. Since there won't be any prelims in this meet, he might explode with the right kind of start."

Willoughby has never seen his prize sprinter explode more than he did in the final 880 relay at last spring's Florida AA state

We had to win the event to win the state championship by one point," recapped Willoughby. "One of our sprinters on the relay broke his neck the night before the state meet.

cording to his coach. "He ran harder than I've ever seen him

"Three coaches timed his leg in :19.9 and he was running six yards longer than a 220. We always make him run a 226-yard anchor," Willoughby pointed out.

When he was coming around that corner, I honestly thought he was going to blow up," Willoughby said. "I swear, if he ever runs the 100 the way he ran that 220, he'll go somewhere

McTear has said he believes his potential in the 100 is either

To McTear's disadvantage Friday, he's only run a 100-meter race six or seven times, according to his prep coach.

Willoughby said "you hear the Russians say how they made Valery Borzov such a super sprinter, but I don't think you make a sprinter. The talent is God-given. No way can you make a 10flat sprinter a 9-flat sprinter.

Sure, Houston works hard and wants to accomplish great times," added Willoughby, "but he also has the natural talent and the bruising strength to do it.

"You don't run 9-flat every time you hop on the track," acknowledged Willoughby, "but one thing about Houston, he's the same kid he was when he ran :09.8 in eighth grade.

"A lot of sprinters are high-strung," his coach explained. "Houston thinks he's the best. But when he gets beat, he just says: 'We've got to work harder, coach.' "

Tennessee's Reggie Jones was the last sprinter to outduel McTear six weeks ago in Modesto, Calif.

McTear's biggest scalps have been five wins (three indoors and twice outdoors) in five challenges from former Southern Illinois standout Ivory Crockett.

"A lot of people forget he's just a high school student," Willoughby pointed out. "I guess when you're in the running for the world's fastest human, people overlook your age."

It's easy to do. Someone said competitors for this weekend's meet are called juniors, but they compete like men.

Especially Houston McTear.

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

A 16-year-old girl shouldn't have to face the kinds of pressure that Nancy Kindig is facing today.

After all, being the only Nebraskan in an international track and field meet means having the entire state pulling for nothing less than victory.

Victory in the pentathlon comes hard enough without the added pressure, because of the variety of events one must compete in.

But winning is secondary to Kindig. Sure she would like to win, but competing well is more important, right now.

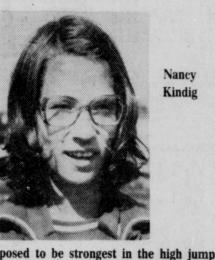

"My dad has tickets for the finish line area," she said, pointing to the middle of the track at Ed Weir Stadium prior to an extra workout. "And there will be a lot of Hastings people in the stands too, the ones that sent me here. I just want to compete well for them.

A junior-to-be at Hastings St. Cecilia high school, Kindig is the top junior American pentathlon qualifier set to face the Russian team Friday and Saturday. Nancy has butterflies. She's had them before, but never like this. "I was scared before the state track meet in May," she said. "But the feeling I have now is so different. I feel real

"People look at me funny when I get up to put the shot," she said. It's no wonder as Kindig's slim build is anything but the mold of a shot putter.

But it's big enough to carry the pressure of competition, in any state.

WIMBLEDON, England found the form that made her retained her Italian and French could not have started worse. (UPI) - Billie Jean King, the world's most successful playing in possibly her last major singles tournament, reached the Wimbledon singles final for the eighth time in 10 years Wednesday by staging one of her typically gritty comebacks to beat defending champion Chris Evert, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

First Savings Gets Victory

North Bend - First Savings held off a late surge by North Bend to take a 6-5 win here Wednesday night.

Pitcher Jim Thompson started his first game since the start of the season and allowed just three hits.

Jerry Dopps went three for four at the plate for First Savings and drove in two RBI's and Paul Haas hit a double and a triple for three RBI's.

First Savings is now 8-6 overall and 5-4 in the Capitol City Baseball League.

U.S. Favored On Charts

By BOB OWENS Star Sports Editor

The United States junior track and field team will score victories in both men's and women's events during competition against the Russian juniors Friday and Saturday at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

That's the conclusion drawn from a comparison of times, heights and distances made available to newsmen in Lincoln

The Lincoln Star's "Dope Sheet" is based on performances of American athletes in qualifying meets for the men at Knoxville, Tenn., and for the women at White Plains, N.Y.

Reason for the discrepency in points is that the American 440 relay team was disqualified when it dropped the baton between the third and fourth leg.

The overall dual meet score, including both men and woman, figures out to U.S. 2121/2, USSR 1711/2. Last year the U.S. overall margin was 197-181.

One American and one Russian man will be attempting to defend titles won last year at Austin, but the form chart says they probably won't repeat.

Eric Hulst, 17-year-old high school junior from Laguna Beach, Calif., figures to have a chance, though, since both he and Rudy Chape of Hammond, Ind., were clocked in identical time at Knoxville in the 10,000 meter run. The judges decision went to Chapa.

Russian triple jumper Valdimir Perevalov won with a leap of 51-4, but faces the threat of losing to American Paul Jorwent 52-8 at Knoxville. Perevalov and Jerome Hutchins of Macon, Ga., who was second

THE LINCOLN STAR.

Sports

By RANDY YORK

To Will Willoughby, it isn't a question of IF Houston McTear can break nine seconds in the 100-yard dash. It's a ques-

"I know he'll do it. It's just a matter of time. He'll get it done before he graduates from high school," Willoughby predicted Wednesday during an American junior track practice session.

Willoughby is McTear's track coach at Baker High School near Milligan (Fla.)

So far this year, the 18-year-old senior-to-be has accomplished 10:09.3's, a pair of:09.2's and a pending world record of :09.0 in the 100.

"No one comes out of the blocks right every time," Willoughby said, "but when Houston comes out of the blocks right, no one in the world can beat him."

McTear will run the 100 meters Friday (at 5:55 p.m.) and anchor the American 400-meter relay (at 6:50 p.m.) against the Soviet Union at Nebraska's Ed Weir track.

"He's said more than once he really wants to whip the Russians," his coach related. "You can't tell what's going to happen, but I know he's primed and ready to compete.'

McTear owns the second fastest 100-meter clocking ever recorded electronically. He was credited with :09.96 in qualifying competition for the Russian dual at Knoxville, Tenn. Jim Ray Hines, 1968 Olympic gold medalist at Mexico City, has the fastest 100-meter clocking (:09.95).

Thursday, July 3, 1975

Willoughby hopes conditions are right for McTear to challenge the world record Friday. The US-USSR dual could be an ideal opportunity, he added.

"Houston has always run better in the prelims than the finals," his coach noted. "His :09.0 was in the prelims. So was his :09.96 in the 100 meters. Since there won't be any prelims in this meet, he might explode with the right kind of start."

Willoughby has never seen his prize sprinter explode more than he did in the final 880 relay at last spring's Florida AA state

one point," recapped Willoughby. "One of our sprinters on the relay broke his neck the night before the state meet. "When he got the baton, he was a good 15 yards behind," ac-

"We had to win the event to win the state championship by

cording to his coach. "He ran harder than I've ever seen him

"Three coaches timed his leg in :19.9 and he was running six vards longer than a 220. We always make him run a 226-yard anchor," Willoughby pointed out.

"When he was coming around that corner, I honestly thought he was going to blow up," Willoughby said. "I swear, if he ever runs the 100 the way he ran that 220, he'll go somewhere

McTear has said he believes his potential in the 100 is either

To McTear's disadvantage Friday, he's only run a 100-meter race six or seven times, according to his prep coach.

Willoughby said "you hear the Russians say how they made Valery Borzov such a super sprinter, but I don't think you make a sprinter. The talent is God-given. No way can you make a 10flat sprinter a 9-flat sprinter.

Sure. Houston works hard and wants to accomplish great times," added Willoughby, "but he also has the natural talent and the bruising strength to do it.

"You don't run 9-flat every time you hop on the track," acknowledged Willoughby, "but one thing about Houston, he's the same kid he was when he ran :09.8 in eighth grade.

"Houston thinks he's the best. But when he gets beat, he just says: 'We've got to work harder, coach.' "

"A lot of sprinters are high-strung," his coach explained.

Tennessee's Reggie Jones was the last sprinter to outduel McTear six weeks ago in Modesto, Calif.

McTear's biggest scalps have been five wins (three indoors and twice outdoors) in five challenges from former Southern Illinois standout Ivory Crockett.

"A lot of people forget he's just a high school student," Willoughby pointed out. "I guess when you're in the running for the world's fastest human, people overlook your age."

It's easy to do. Someone said competitors for this weekend's meet are called juniors, but they compete like men.

Especially Houston McTear.

Kindig Faces Pressure

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

A 16-year-old girl shouldn't have to face the kinds of pressure that Nancy Kindig is facing today.

After all, being the only Nebraskan in an international track and field meet means having the entire state pulling for nothing less than victory.

Victory in the pentathlon comes hard enough without the added pressure. because of the variety of events one must compete in.

But winning is secondary to Kindig. Sure she would like to win, but competing well is more important, right now.

"My dad has tickets for the finish line area," she said, pointing to the middle of the track at Ed Weir Stadium prior to an extra workout. "And there will be a lot of Hastings people in the stands too, the ones that sent me here. I just want to compete well for them."

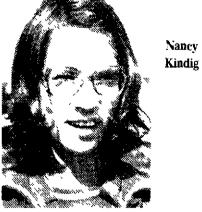

A junior-to-be at Hastings St. Cecilia high school, Kindig is the top junior American pentathion qualifier set to face the Russian team Friday and Saturday.

Nancy has butterflies. She's had them before, but never like this.

"I was scared before the state track meet in May," she said. "But the feeling I have now is so different. I feel real scary.

According to Kindig, the Russians' top performer in the five event test, (high jump, long jump, shot put, 200 meters and 100 meter hurdles), has a qualifying score about 70 points higher than Kindig's qualifying total of 3,856.

"We've learned a little bit about the Russians," Kindig said. "They're supposed to be strongest in the high jump and shot put. Those are my two weakest events, so I'll have to do well there."

Kindig has seen her Russian counterparts although they hadn't met yet "They're not so big, but they look real strong," she said. The whole idea of competing against the Soviet track team is just now catching up to Kindig "It wasn't too long ago I was talking to you at the state track meet," she said. "Now here I am at the USA-Russian meet. I can't believe it.' Although there's been a language barrier between the American teammates and the Russians, Kindig said there is communication. "We were all sitting around last night and some of the Russians can speak a little American, but none of the Americans can speak Russian," she said. "But we tried to talk to then; and we found out we could communicate.' Kindig and American teammate Cindy

Mitchell will be trying to communicate through accomplishment starting with Friday's 4 p.m. 100 meter hurdles. The shot put follows a half hour later and the high jump 45 minutes after the shot.

Kindig is pretty sure of herself in the hurdles, sprint and long jump, but the high jump and shot put have her worried a little

"People look at me funny when I get up to put the shot." she said. It's no wonder as Kindig's slim build is anything but the mold of a shot putter.

But it's big enough to carry the pressure of competition, in any state.

Schwartzkopf Nips Hyland

By CHUCK SINCLAIR It was the end of a domination, but hardly the end of an

Jean Hyland's five year reign in championships Wednesday at Pioneers Park, but even Schwartzkopf admits she can't remember exactly when someone other than herself or Hyland won the title. Hyland, besides winning the last five tournaments, has won 13 all together, and Schwartzkopf's four shot win in this year's, (242 to 246 for Hyland), gives her a ninth title. Schwartzkopf shot an 82 for late 50s when someone else won it," she said. "I can remember Sarah Leaman won it three years Dorothy Schwartzkopf ended in a row when I was first starting to golf seriously. But that's been the Lincoln women's city golf a long time ago. I can't remember anyone besides

Each year, the meetings

"It may date back as far as the said while admiring her prize. Holding a two shot lead over Hyland going into the final round, Schwartzkopf picked up three more quickly when she not better than sixes. "I missed three putts on those holes that I would've bet anybody they were in the hole after I hit them," Hyland said. "My chipping has been terrible the whole tournament, too, and that's usually my strong point "

"I had a few poor shots intermingled with the good ones." she said. "You always have to consider it nothing but a wasted shot, especially when you know took three fives on the opening you can hit the ball a lot better than that."

With the type of young golfers coming up, both Hyland and Schwartzkopf will have to go to keep the era alive.

"There are a lot of good, young golfers coming up now," Schwartzkopf said.

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Veter-Omaha — The Nebraska State an Miller Barber sank four putts from 20 feet or beyond to post a seven-under-par 65 which survived a late challenge by home state product Andy North Wednesday for a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Golf Tournament.

North, who bogeyed his last hole late in the day, was tied with early finishers Art Wall and Bob Zender at 67 at the 7,010yard Tuckaway Country Club course

The new putter Barber acquired after the Masters Tournamert in April failed the 44year Texan only once. He missed a birdie putt from 31/2 feet on the 524-yard sixth hole.

Pitcher Scores Winning Run

Harry Krasischke, Dick Flynn Buick winning pitcher, helped his own cause Wednesday by scoring the winning run against Walker Tire, in a 7-3 AAA fast pitch softball game at Ballard

Krasischke scored on a pass ball for the win.

However, Barber said the 20footer he dropped to salvage a par four on the first hole was the key to his round, which included an eagle three on the 527yard second hole, five birdies and no bogeys.

On the first hole Barber bunkered his tee shot, hit his second to the right of the green and chipped to within 20 feet. He sank a 35-footer for his eagle and birdied his last two holes with putts of 30-35 and 3540 feet, respectively.

NRL, Inc. Asks Aid

The Nebraska Recreational League Inc., (NRL) is asking assistance from camping families and groups across the state as well as its own members.

In a memo from executive director W. E. (Bill) Haydon of Lincoln, campers are asked to log the following information during camping trips this summer:

Note (1) where weeds and grass are mowed, (2) where garbage is picked up and at what intervals, (3) conditions of roadways into and throughout an area. (4) where dead trees are removed or need removal and (5) if a ranger is on duty, ask him about this year's budget and those of past years in comparison - i.e. is his area getting more or less money for operation than

Also jot down (6) the number of camping units in the area, (7) the number of picnickers using the area (by nose count), (8) the condition of the area when picnickers left, (9) the condition of picnic tables and other equipment and (10) if rubbish left in

Haydon says the information will be used as ammunition during the next legislative session to show need for more maintenance and improvements money for the state park and

The information will also be used to help illustrate the campers' arguments that all users should help pay for these facilities, in this case picnickers, as well as campers who are being charged camping fees at many of the state camping areas.

The information can be mailed to W. E. Haydon, 617 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln 68508, or given to a NRL member who will forward the information.

NRA Membership Drive

The National Rifle Assn. (NRA) plans an intensive membership drive in commemoration of Independence Day 1975, according to Gen. Maxwell E. Rich, executive vice presi-

The NRA, already some one million members strong, wants 100,000 new members through concentrated national sign-up efforts during July 4, 5 and 6.

According to the NRA, the membership drive is aimed at showing the American public and Congress that citizens are as aware and understanding of the firearm situation in the country today as the public during the early days of the American

A special NRA toll-free number (800-368-9500) has been set up to help members phone in the names and addresses of new members during the entire month of July. Should phone lines be tied up, NRA members are urged to mail in the new memberships, according to officials

In addition to the membership drive, numerous NRA clubs are sponsoring special events to celebrate the 199th birthday of the Declaration of Independence. All members are encouraged to participate, says Rich.

Nuggets Get Nod For Talks With Thompson

BASKETBALL

David Thompson, the No. 1 draft pick of the NBA Atlanta Hawks and drafted by the Virginia Squires of the ABA, has gone into seclusion to decide which league to to with.

The Squires and the Denver Nuggets have apparently reached an understanding allowing the Nuggets to pursue the North Carolina State star. The Nuggets lured the Hawks' No. 3 choice, Marvin Webster and might have an inside track with Thompson since they signed teammate Monte Towe.

Unconfirmed reports indicate three Denver players, Mike Green, all-star guard Mack Calvin and Jan Van Breda Kolf, would be sent to the Squires should the Nuggets sign Thompson.

A $2 million damage suit was filed in the death of New York Nets player Wendell Ladner against Eastern Airlines, claiming negligence in operations. Another suit will be filed against the Port Authority of New York and the Federal Aviation Administration charging them with negligence in failing to close the runway because of turbulent weather.

The Indiana Pacers of the ABA signed Mike Flynn, a threeyear starter at the University of Kentucky.

John Lambert, the Cleveland Cavaliers' top draft choice, signed with the NBA team.

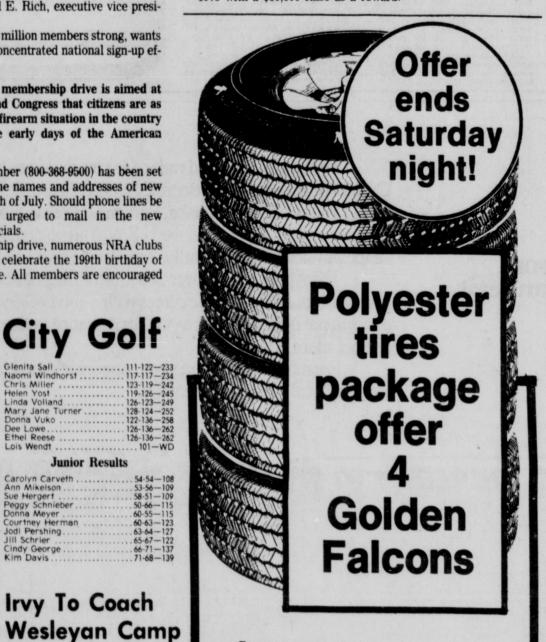

The New Orleans Jazz of the NBA signed Rich Kelly to a multi-year contract. Kelly was Stanford's all-time leading rebounder.

BASEBALL

The Cincinnati Reds completed the longest errorless span in major league history at 15-plus games. The streak ended when leftfielder Dan Driessen bobbled a bases-loaded single, ending the streak at 152 1/3 innings. The Reds broke the all-time record of 13 on Sunday and then extended it two games.

Top free agent draft choice Danny Goodwin of Southern University was named player of the year and California State-Fullerton's Augie Garrido coach of the year in college baseball by Sporting News.

Owner Charlie Finley of the Oakland A's said he had given 20-year-old outfielder Claudell Washington a new contract for 1975 with a $10,000 raise as a reward.

Racing Commission will hear trainer Steve Long at its Tuesday morning meeting at Ak-Sar-Ben. Long, who trains George Lucky Tyoma Weasel's My Juliet, is upset over the order of finish in last Satur-day's $106,375 Omaha Gold Cup Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

My Juliet's rider, Allen Hill, filed an objection after finishing second. He claimed that the eventual winner, Jack Van Berg's Gray Bar, interfered with his mount in the stretch run of the mile and 1/16th race.

The Ak-Sar-Ben board of stewards (Noel Chilcutt, Jim Hall and Jack Fickler) ruled otherwise and the result of the race was left unchanged.

This will be one of two protests over Ak-Sar-Ben race results the Commission is scheduled to hear. The other is a protest by H. A. Mayor Jr. and Richard Boushka, owners of Bold Trap, who won but was disqualified and placed third in the 4-H Handicap on June 14.

The other hearings involve pony boy Jerry Breemes, who is appealing a $100 fine levied by the stewards for "creating a disturbance following the running of the seventh race on June 7" and patron Harry E. Volpe, who requests to be heard concerning pari-mutuel disbursements of the third race at Ak-Sar-Ben on May 24.

Putts Help Barber Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Veteran Miller Barber sank four putts from 20 feet or beyond to post a seven-under-par 65 which survived a late challenge by home state product Andy North Wednesday for a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Golf Tournament.

North, who bogeyed his last hole late in the day, was tied with early finishers Art Wall and Bob Zender at 67 at the 7,010yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

The new putter Barber acquired after the Masters Tournamert in April failed the 44year T-exan only once. He missed a birdie putt from 31/2 feet on the 524-yard sixth hole.

Pitcher Scores Winning Run

Harry Krasischke, Dick Flynn Buick winning pitcher, helped his own cause Wednesday by scoring the winning run against Walker Tire, in a 7-3 AAA fast pitch softball game at Ballard

Krasischke scored on a pass ball for the win.

However, Barber said the 20footer he dropped to salvage a par four on the first hole was the key to his round, which included an eagle three on the 527yard second hole, five birdies and no bogeys.

Colonel Sanders Moves To First

Colonel Sanders moved into first place in AAA slow pitch softball Wednesday with two wins at Elks Field. Colonel Sanders routed

Barry's, 11-4, paced by Ron Fox with three RBI's on four hits in four trips to the plate. In their second game, Colonel

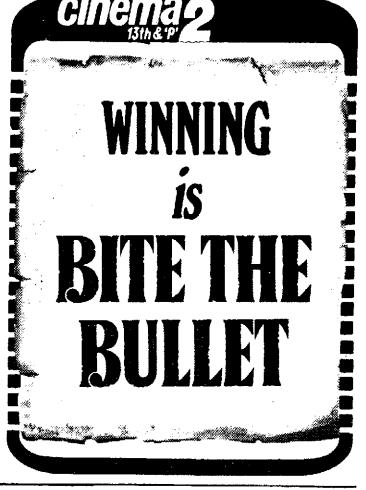

Sanders downed Sam's, 8-5, despite Sam's 15 hits to Sanders' 12. Colonel Sanders ended the game with a one-out double play to thwart Sam's surge in the seventh. In other action, Ace TV downed Barry's, 4-1, paced by Greg Sattler with three hits and two RBI's.

Schwartzkopt In 'No Hurry' To Accept Job

Sam Schwartzkopf, former mayor of Lincoln, said Wednesday he has several job offers lined up, but is in "no hurry" to make a decision.

Schwartzkopf, defeated in his bid for re-election in May, said he is "still considering" what jobs to take, but declined to give out specific details on his plans.

Before his election to the mayor's job in 1967, Schwartzkopf was a sales representative for Investors Diversified Services, Inc.

NRL, Inc. Asks Aid

The Nebraska Recreational League Inc., (NRL) is asking assistance from camping families and groups across the state as well as its own members.

In a memo from executive director W. E. (Bill) Haydon of Lincoln, campers are asked to log the following information during camping trips this summer:

Note (1) where weeds and grass are mowed, (2) where garbage is picked up and at what intervals, (3) conditions of roadways into and throughout an area, (4) where dead trees are removed or need removal and (5) if a ranger is on duty, ask him about this year's budget and those of past years in comparison - i.e. is his area getting more or less money for operation than previous years?

Also jot down (6) the number of camping units in the area, (7) the number of picnickers using the area (by nose count), (8) the condition of the area when picnickers left, (9) the condition of picnic tables and other equipment and (10) if rubbish left in

Haydon says the information will be used as ammunition during the next legislative session to show need for more maintenance and improvements money for the state park and recreation area system.

The information will also be used to help illustrate the campers' arguments that all users should help pay for these facilities, in this case picnickers, as well as campers who are being charged camping fees at many of the state camping areas.

The information can be mailed to W. E. Haydon, 617 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln 68508, or given to a NRL member who will forward the information.

NRA Membership Drive

The National Rifle Assn. (NRA) plans an intensive membership drive in commemoration of Independence Day 1975, according to Gen. Maxwell E. Rich, executive vice presi-

The NRA, already some one million members strong, wants 100,000 new members through concentrated national sign-up efforts during July 4, 5 and 6.

According to the NRA, the membership drive is aimed at showing the American public and Congress that citizens are as aware and understanding of the firearm situation in the country today as the public during the early days of the American Revolution.

A special NRA toll-free number (800-368-9500) has been set up to help members phone in the names and addresses of new members during the entire month of July. Should phone lines be tied up. NRA members are urged to mail in the new memberships, according to officials.

In addition to the membership drive, numerous NRA clubs are sponsoring special events to celebrate the 199th birthday of the Declaration of Independence. All members are encouraged to participate, says Rich.

Irvy To Coach Wesleyan Camp

Jan Irvy, a member of the U.S. international basketball team, will help coach a girls basketball camp at Nebraska Wesleyan later this month.

Irvy is a member of the William Penn College team which had a 33-3 record last year and was the Iowa collegiate champion. She played against the Russian team last summer and played at the World Festival in Columbia.

The five-day camp is open to girls from six to 12 years old. The other coaches at the camp will be Irv Peterson from Nebraska Westeyan, Ed Johnson from Lincoln Northeast and Kim Busch from Fullerton.

David Thompson, the No. 1 draft pick of the NBA Atlanta Hawks and drafted by the Virginia Squires of the ABA, has gone into seclusion to decide which league to to with.

BASKETBALL

The Squires and the Denver Nuggets have apparently reached an understanding allowing the Nuggets to pursue the North Carolina State star. The Nuggets Jured the Hawks' No. 3 choice, Marvin Webster and might have an inside track with Thompson since they signed teammate Monte Towe.

Unconfirmed reports indicate three Denver players, Mike Green, all-star guard Mack Calvin and Jan Van Breda Kolf, would be sent to the Squires should the Nuggets sign Thompson.

A $2 million damage suit was filed in the death of New York Nets player Wendell Ladner against Eastern Airlines, claiming negligence in operations. Another suit will be filed against the Port Authority of New York and the Federal Aviation Administration charging them with negligence in failing to close the runway because of turbulent weather.

The Indiana Pacers of the ABA signed Mike Flynn, a threeyear starter at the University of Kentucky.

John Lambert, the Cleveland Cavaliers' top draft choice, signed with the NBA team.

BASEBALL

The Cincinnati Reds completed the longest errorless span in major league history at 15-plus games. The streak ended when leftfielder Dan Driessen bobbled a bases-loaded single, ending the streak at 152 1/3 innings. The Reds broke the all-time record of 13 on Sunday and then extended it two games.

Top free agent draft choice Danny Goodwin of Southern University was named player of the year and California State-Fullerton's Augie Garrido coach of the year in college baseball by Sporting News.

Owner Chartie Finley of the Oakland A's said he had given 20-year-old outfielder Claudell Washington a new contract for 1975 with a $10,000 raise as a reward.

Firm Tracks Old Securities

By JANE BRYANT QUINN New York - When a relative dies, you may well find among his papers the remains of an investment that didn't work out. Your inheritance might include an interest in an obscure mining claim, a trading company, or a bank that collapsed in the 1930s. Sometimes beautifully engraved, elegantly sealed and signed in a spidery hand, these old securities pose a problem. Should you use them to paper the bathroom, or do they still have some value?

R. M. Smythe & Co., a New York City firm, has been answering that question for people since 1880. The founder, Roland Smythe - who sometimes referred to himself as Obsolete Smythe - was a mining engineer and grain trader. One day someone brought him an old South Carolina bond and asked what he could get for it. Smythe found a broker offering $400, which he took gladly. But on making inquiry of officials in South Carolina, he later found the bond to be worth $1,200.

The experience was eyeopening. Deciding that he'd rather be paid in cash than experience, Smythe went into the business of tracking old

Unfortunately, not many old investments are worth $1,200. Most such companies have vanished into the mist of failed American enterprise, taking all their investors' money with them. Michael Mullan, a historian and secretary-treasurer of R. M. Smythe, says that only 5% of the securities he traces have any value, and only about 2% any substantial value.

But it's helpful even to know for sure that a security is worthless. It might give you a tax write-off, and at least will settle the question in the family.

You can research the matter yourself if your local library carries the Robert D. Fisher Manual of Valuable and Worthless Securities. (Bob Fisher Jr. is a member of the Smythe firm.) If not, send $15 and a photocopy of the security to Smythe (170 Broadway, New York, N.Y.) and they'll tell you whether it's worth any money.

Old bonds are more likely to have value than stocks, since bond-holders take precedence when the company is liquidated. Mullan says that real estate bonds have the best shot, since the land and buildings may well have been bought by another company and put to productive use. Last February, Bob Fisher tracked a $10,000 bond issued in 1928 by the Wiltshire Realty Co. through one reorganization, two mergers and a change of company name, to find that it could be exchanged for stock worth $11,000. (But 14 other items sent in by the same person proved worthless.)

Railroad bonds are another good bet. Among stocks, preferred issues are more likely to have value than the common. Some companies sit around for years doing no business, then are bought by entrepreneurs who want to tuck their own enterprises into pre-existing corporate shells. Overnight, the moribund stock acquires value.

Least likely to be worth anything are old mining and oil stocks, which were sold to investors in great numbers. One such, kept by Michael Mullan for its antiquarian value, is a security from the failed Alabama Gold and Copper Mining Co., sealed with gold and signed by Pat Garrett — the sheriff who shot Billy the Kid.

Dollar bonds issued by foreign governments may have value some day, even if they don't now. Some countries (like Mexico) are notorious for the amount of foreign debt they have repudiated in the past. But since they won't be able to borrow much more internationally without bringing payment on their old bonds up to date, there likely will be receoveries down the pike.

Poland has just offered a settlement on her pre-war dollar bonds; Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia may not be far behind. China hasn't paid her dollar debts but, unlike the Soviet Union, neither has she repudiated them — so even they may one day be collectible.

You may have to prove you came by the security honestly before you can collect on an obsolete stock or bond. Many European issues were looted during the war. Similarly, unscrupulous lawyers and brokers have been known to pay estates pennies for old securitites they know to be worth something.

Not all of the stock certificates R. M. Smuthe traces are old. A lot of their business today involves searching out the remains of small companies that went public in 1966 and 1968 - the years of the trashy underwritings. If you bought such a stock and it's no longer quoted for sale, maybe it's a job for Smythe. Your money may be gone, but Smythe at least may be able to provide you with documentation for claiming a tax loss.

three weeks Wednesday. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.04 to 870.38 for its largest loss since June 10, when it gave up 7.98 points.

Prime Rate

Worries Hit

Big Board volume tailed off to 18.53 million shares from 20.39 million on Tuesday.

The Dow fell about 10 points in the first hour amid spreading expectations that New York's First National City Bank would raise its prime rate from 6¾ to 7 per cent Thursday morning because of the recent rise of open market money rates.

Analysts also were mentioning a possible further increase by Citibank next week to 74 per cent in the key rate on loans to large corporations.

Most banks currently have their primes set at 7 per cent. Rising interest rates are usually a negative influence on the stock market for two reasonsthey mean higher costs for businesses that want or need to borrow, either for expansion or for day-to-day operations, and at the same time they increase the allure of interest-bearing investments, which compete with stocks for investors' funds. After the initial selloff, the market levelled off through the middle part of the session, and then staged a modest recovery toward the close.

Notable declines showed up in some stocks that are sensitive to interest-rate developments.

Among mortgage guarantee issues, for instance, MGIC investment was off 1 at 17 in active trading and CMI investment lost a point to 111/2. Prominent losers in the glamor sector included IBM, down 15% at 2067%; Philip Morris, off 11/2 at 52, and Johnson & Johnson, 134 lower at 941/2. United GAs Pipeline rose 1 to

Soybean, Corn Futures Post Modest Gains

Chicago (AP) - Soybean and corn futures posted modest gains on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday on reports that some crops in the Central portion of the country might be in need of moisture. Although the floor reports were greeted with surprise since the area has had heavy rains, well spaced in recent weeks, a good demand was created for these commodities. Soybeans gained 71/2 cents and corn 31/2. Soybean oil gained some 50 points and meal $2.50 a ton. Oats were up 21/2 cents but wheat futures closed mixed. Iced broilers were steady to about 1/2 cent a pound higher.

Gold futures lost as much as $2.50 an ounce under profittaking and in very dull trade.

Blues Hit Omaha Mart Maturity

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-The preholiday blues hit the Omaha livestock market with a bang Wednesday.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 4,000 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was moderately active. But the butcher trend was $1.00-to-$1.25 lower on better offerings, and unevenly $2.00-to-$3.00 lower on ess desirables.

Sows turned $1.50 to mostly $2.00 lower, with some sales as much $2.25 off.

The cattle run of 2,500 was small and it lacked good quality.

Steers and heifers were moderately active, and mostly 50cents lower. Cows trended 25-to-50 cents higher.

There were 250 sheep on offer, with spring slaughter lambs trending 50-cents lower, and the few slaughter ewes were called steady.

The market will be closed Friday, and most slaughter houses will also be closed for the holiday

Schwartzkopf In 'No Hurry' To Accept Job

Sam Schwartzkopf, former mayor of Lincoln, said Wednesday he has several job offers lined up, but is in "no hurry" to make a decision.

Schwartzkopf, defeated in his bid for re-election in May, said he is "still considering" what jobs to take, but declined to give out specific details on his plans.

Before his election to the mayor's job in 1967, Schwartzkopf was a sales representative for Investors Diversified Services, Inc.

Cavanaugh Criticizes

Hutchinson

By The Associated Press Omaha State Sen. John Cavanaugh sharply criticized an assistant attorney general Wednesday who said state employes could be prosecuted for releasing information from the state's central computer Cavanaugh said Asst. Atty. Gen. Marilyn Hutchinson was 'absolutely wrong."

"It is my belief that Miss Hutchinson learned public records law under Richard Nixon," Cavanaugh said. The Omaha lawmaker said his amendments to the bill, passed by the Legislature this year, say the public will have access to all public information in the com-"She can't read English and she obviously has never looked at the legislative intent," Cavanaugh said. "Miss Hutchinson has a history of attempting to obstruct access to public records.' Cavanaugh's amendment to the law said: "Any data which is a public record in its original form shall remain a public record when maintained in a computer file."

Miss Hutchinson's opinion said, "any request for data maintained in your computer files should be directed to the depositing agency where such data were created or received."

She told the Department of Administrative Services, which operates the computers: "Under threat of criminal sanctions, you and your employes are not to disclose such files on your own initiative after LB472 becomes effective on Aug. 24."

State Raps Organization Of Supervisory Persons By The Associated Press

The organization of supervisory personnel at the Game and Parks Commission would be a violation of "public policy," Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Gary Schneider told the Court of Industrial Relations Wednesday.

A hearing on the petition of the Nebraska Association of Public Employes to organize more than 40 agency workers broke down a legal question of

By JANE BRYANT QUINN New York - When a relative dies, you may well find among his papers the remains of an investment that didn't work out. Your inheritance might include an interest in an obscure mining claim, a trading company, or a bank that collapsed in the 1930s. Sometimes beautifully engraved, elegantly sealed and signed in a spidery hand, these old securities pose a problem. Should you use them to paper the bathroom, or do they still have some value?

R. M. Smythe & Co., a New York City firm, has been answering that question for people since 1880. The founder, Roland Smythe - who sometimes referred to himself as Obsolete Smythe - was a mining engineer and grain trader. One day someone brought him an old South Carolina bond and asked what he could get for it. Smythe found a broker offering $400, which he took gladly. But on making inquiry of officials in South Carolina, he later found the bond to be worth $1,200.

The experience was eveopening. Deciding that he'd rather be paid in cash than experience, Smythe went into the business of tracking old securities.

Unfortunately, not many old investments are worth $1,200. Most such companies have vanished into the mist of failed American enterprise, taking all their investors' money with them. Michael Mullan, a historian and secretary-treasurer of R. M. Smythe, says that only 5% of the securities he traces have any value, and only about 2% any substantial value.

But it's helpful even to know for sure that a security is worthless. It might give you a tax write-off, and at least will settle the question in the family.

You can research the matter yourself if your local library carries the Robert D. Fisher Manual of Valuable and Worthless Securities. (Bob Fisher Jr. is a member of the Smythe firm.) If not, send $15 and a photocopy of the security to Smythe (170 Broadway, New York, N.Y.) and they'll tell you whether it's worth any money.

Old bonds are more likely to have value than stocks, since bond-holders take precedence when the company is liquidated. Mullan says that real estate bonds have the best shot, since the land and buildings may well have been bought by another company and put to productive use. Last February, Bob Fisher tracked a $10,000 bond issued in 1928 by the Wiltshire Realty Co. through one reorganization, two mergers and a change of company name, to find that it could Bryant

be exchanged for stock worth $11,000. (But 14 other items sent in by the same person proved worthless.)

Railroad bonds are another good bet. Among stocks, preferred issues are more likely to have value than the common. Some companies sit around for years doing no business, then are bought by entrepreneurs who want to tuck their own enterprises into pre-existing corporate shells. Overnight, the moribund

Least likely to be worth anything are old mining and oil stocks, which were sold to investors in great numbers. One such, kept by Michael Mullan for its antiquarian value, is a security from the failed Alabama Gold and Copper Mining Co., sealed with gold and signed by Pat Garrett — the sheriff who shot Billy the Kid.

Dollar bonds issued by foreign governments may have value some day, even if they don't Mexico) are notorious for the amount of foreign debt they have repudiated in the past. But since they won't be able to borrow much more internationally without bringing payment on their old bonds up to date, there likely will be receoveries down the pike.

Poland has just offered a settlement on her pre-war dollar bonds; Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia may not be far behind. China hasn't paid her dollar debts but, unlike the Soviet Union, neither has she repudiated them — so even they may one day be collectible.

You may have to prove you came by the security honestly before you can collect on an obsolete stock or bond. Many European issues were looted during the war. Similarly, unscrupulous lawyers and brokers pennies for old securitites they know to be worth something.

derwritings. If you bought such a stock and it's no longer quoted gone, but Smythe at least may be able to provide you with documentation for claiming a three weeks Wednesday. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 7.04 to 870.38 for its largest loss since June 10, when it gave up 7.98 points. Big Board volume tailed off to 18.53 million shares from 20.39 million on Tuesday.

Stock Market NEW YORK (AP) -Expectations of an upward move in the bank prime lending rate drove the stock market into its 248 advances, 421 declines. sharpest decline in more than products "A" 81/2, -3/4.

The Dow fell about 10 points in the first hour amid spreading expectations that New York's First National City Bank would raise its prime rate from 6% to 7 per cent Thursday morning because of the recent rise of open market money rates.

Analysts also were mentioning a possible further increase by Citibank next week to 74 per cent in the key rate on loans to large corporations.

Most banks currently have their primes set at 7 per cent. Rising interest rates are usually a negative influence on the stock market for two reasonsthey mean higher costs for businesses that want or need to borrow, either for expansion or for day-to-day operations, and at the same time they increase the allure of interest-bearing investments, which compete with stocks for investors' funds. After the initial selloff, the market levelled off through the middle part of the session, and then staged a modest recovery toward the close.

Notable declines showed up in some stocks that are sensitive to interest-rate developments.

Among mortgage guarantee issues, for instance, MGIC investment was off 1 at 17 in active trading and CMI investment lost a point to 111/2.

Prominent losers in the glamor sector included IBM, down 1% at 206%; Philip Morris, off 11/2 at 52, and Johnson & Johnson, 134 lower at 941/2.

United GAs Pipeline rose 1 to 121/2. The company said the Federal Power Commission staff had agreed to support a proposed settlement of an investigation into the spinoff of United from Pennzoil Co. last

Markets At A Glance Pre-Holiday Blues Hit

Omaha Mart Maturity OMAHA, Neb. (AP)-The preholiday blues hit the Omaha livestock market with a bang

Wednesday. The day's hog run was estimated at about 4,000 head, and the trade on barrows and gilts was moderately active. But the butcher trend was $1.00-to-$1.25 lower on better offerings, and unevenly $2.00-to-$3.00 lower on less desirables.

Sows turned $1.50 to mostly $2.00 lower, with some sales as much $2.25 off.

The cattle run of 2,500 was small and it lacked good quality.

Steers and heifers were moderately active, and mostly 50cents lower. Cows trended 25-to-50 cents higher.

There were 250 sheep on offer, with spring slaughter lambs trending 50-cents lower, and the few slaughter ewes were called steady.

The market will be closed Friday, and most slaughter houses will also be closed for the holiday.

Other schemes to save the college that failed included refinancing of the college by Eastern financiers who sought tax advantages, and use of the college by a Denver proprietary curriculum firm for an offcampus training program in insurance salesmanship.

The refinancing deal collapsed with the death of realtor Wade Scott of Lincoln, a former Kennedy faculty member, who was involved in the negotiations. The insurance salesmanship curriculum went by the boards when the federal Veterans Administration instituted new regulations disqualifying the unaccredited college for tuition payments under the GI Bill.

Wheat Recovers After Bad Spring

The Nebraska winter wheat cross is made in the greenhouse growing conditions, a University of Nebraska Extension June, he said. agronomist said this week as the state's harvest swings into gear.

A. F. Dreier said the late June rains and cool weather over much of the state were favorable for kernel filling. Several areas were so dry earlier, however, the June rains came too late, he said.

The weather also eased the effects of at least one disease, according to Dreier. Soil-borne mosaic affected many southeastern Nebraska fields, but because of the cool, damp conditions, the fields made good recovery, he said.

Most wheat varieties are susceptible to leaf rust which was widespread and locally severe, Dreier said. Hessian fly damage was general in southeast Nebraska, he said.

Local areas had severe lodging problems, he said, and because of more extensive wheat irrigation, a new variety probably is needed.

Dreier said a minimum of 10 years is required from the time a

Omaha (UPI) - The 7th Step Foundation, Inc., received the use of a $10,000 savings certificate late Wednesday as collateral in financing a $9,000 loan to keep operating through the next two weeks.

John Sevrean, 7th Step executive director, said the suprise backing by an benefactor, who chose to remain anonymous, meant that Douglas County's most successful organization dealing with exconvicts could pay some urgent bill demands Thursday.

Among those, Sevrean said, were office rent, employe salaries and a $1,000 telephone bill, which Northwestern Bell Telephone Co., said needs to be paid to restore phone service.

The move came after the Douglas County Board voted 5-0 to give 7th Step a $22,500 allocation to keep its doors open through August. However, foundation officials were told following the board meeting the county couldn't get them the money until a week from next Tuesday.

Sevrean said the contact for the anonymous financial backing was made by Jim Snelling, a 7th Step executive board member and Omaha area salvage dealer. Snelling had earlier told UPI, "I have cosigned for a personal loan to 7th Step and I might have to put my salvage yard on the line this time to keep us open."

"With this news this afternoon," Sevrean said, "we'll be able to keep going without any additional money from our board members, who have given us the money to keep going during the last month."

By NANCY HICKS ailments were advised to stay in- 20 years, said Gene Richardson, Star Staff Writer doors, Zoller said.

Smog, a problem normally associated with southern California, has descended upon Nebraska,

A combination of very unusual weather conditions plus more cars and industry has produced hazy smog throughout most of Nebraska, and the condition is expected to continue for another two to five days, according to the National Weather Service in

Much of the Midwest from Nebraska eastward through Iowa is covered by a large stationary high pressure system. The air stagnation has not yet reached the Chadron-Scottsbluff area, but is slowly moving westward, according to James W. Zoller, chief meteorologist for the state at the National Weather Service. This "tired air mass," which has plagued the Lincoln area since Monday, contains pollutants from man's environment, including pollutants from cars and factories as far away as St. Louis and Texas. Zoller said. But the pollutants are not all at ground level. They extend vertically up to about 8,000 to 9,000 feet, he said. Local conditions can increase the pollution and in Omaha one pollutant factor — ozone — went above the danger level Tuesday, and an alert was issued for the Omaha area, Zoller said. Residents were asked to use their cars as little as possible and air stagnation has moved out and was in the Grand Island area Wednesday, Zoller said.

Though Lincoln has no equipment to monitor ozone, the local carbon monoxide level is not too high, according to Dr. Gary Walsh, supervisor of the City-County Health Department's air pollution control section. A continuing stagnant air condition is very unusual in Nebraska, according to Walsh.

"Usually we have fast moving high and low air periods with only short periods of stagnation," Walsh said. This area has had only two stagnation advisories in the past

FIRST NATIONAL

Omaha (UPI) - The 7th Step Foundation, Inc., received the use of a $10,000 savings certificate late Wednesday as collateral in financing a $9,000 loan to keep operating through the next two weeks

John Sevrean, 7th Step executive director, said the suprise backing by an benefactor, who chose to remain anonymous, meant that Douglas County's most successful organization dealing with exconvicts could pay some urgent bill demands Thursday

Among those, Sevrean said, were office rent, employe salaries and a $1,000 telephone bill, which Northwestern Bell Telephone Co, said needs to be paid to restore phone service

The move came after the Douglas County Board voted 5-0 to give 7th Step a $22,500 allocation to keep its doors open through August However, foundation officials were told following the board meeting the county couldn't get them the money until a week from next Tuesday

Sevrean said the contact for the anonymous financial backing was made by Jim Snelling, a 7th Step executive board member and Omaha area salvage dealer Snelling had earlier told UPI, "I have cosigned for a personal loan to 7th Step and I might have to put my salvage yard on the line this time to keep us open " "With this news this afternoon," Sevrean said, "we'll be able to keep going without any additional money from our board members, who have given us the money to keep going during the last month
